Dying for an Idea
American Samurai
Women, Living and Dead
Night School for Cox

Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori. "Sweet and becoming it is to die for one's country," said the Roman poet.

The French sing it in one of their finest songs. Mourir pour la patrie, c'est le sort le plus beau! le plus digne d'envie.

How many men have died with these words in mind?

The noble D'Assas thought them, when fifty English soldiers pointing spears at his breast warned him to make no noise. He cried out, warning his comrades, until the spears stopped his voice. His name is spoken now, and he is dead hundreds of years. Whenever they call the roll of his regiment, the oldest soldier answers: "Dead, on the field of honor."

Those old words are in the heart of Terence MacSwiney, dying of hunger in prison.

"What good c n he do by starving himself to death?" some ask. He can do what millions of other brave men have done, PROVE THAT HE IS IN EARNEST. "Better for Ireland that I die," he says to those that urge food upon him.

You will not easily put down a cause for which a man is willing to starve in a foreign prison.

From the day when the first English woman, too weak to stand, was carried from prison starving, because the jailers did not dare let her die, it was certain that women would get the vote.

For everything worth while men and women have died. That for which they will not die, they won't get. Ireland will have freedom because Irishmen are willing to die for an idea.

Mr. Frank Curtis writes from No. 540 Main street, Medford: "I suggest the following 'slogan' for both parties:

"Vote for Cox in November; Register for the draft in December."

If you registered for the draft last time, just cut this out with the following prediction: Elect Mr. Cox and the League of Nations with its article ten and you will register for the draft again. As soon as the European council thinks it needs you.

Long ago, when the steel trust was formed and big corporations were always fighting their employes, this writer asked: "How long will it take corporations to form an American samurai of high-priced workers standing between the corporations and the people, and living on the people, as the Japanese samurai, the two-sword men, stood between Japanese rulers and peasants?"

The days of the American samurai are about here.

Railroad workers want six hundred millions more a year. The railroad owners do not fight; they rive the workers six hundred millions and then take FIFTEEN hundred millions from the public in increased freight and passenger rates.

After a while, when you have a few corporations employing five or ten million men at the highest wages, and keeping the bill alone to the public, with 100 per cent. profit added, you will face an industrial samurai system hard to beat.

You read about the fighting in Ireland and "a girl in a green blouse leading the Sinn Fein fighters, a dozen yards ahead of them."

You read about the death of William K. Vanderbilt in France, leaving a hundred millions of dollars inherited, and fifty thousand dollars to a church, two hundred and fifty thousand to an institution founded by one of his ancestors.

At the same time you read about Mrs. Nellie A. Bisch, also dead in Europe, also inherited a fortune, two million dollars, from her husband, a Chicago banker. Levy Mayer, rising legal adviser of "big business," dies the lady's will and shows that EVERY DOLLAR goes to charitable institutions, especially to help poor children.

Women certainly lead, in courage living, in generosity after death.

Mr Cox says "the man who says the League of Nations means war is hypocritical, and he knows it." If Mr. Cox has read Article Ten and believes what he says, he needs four years in a night school more than the United States needs four years of him in the White House.

Mr. Cox, to prove his sincerity, might, in the next speech he makes, read Article Ten, slowly, aloud to his audience, putting emphasis on the words:

"The members of the League undertake to preserve the territorial integrity and existing political independence of the members of the League."

After reading that, make your audience forget, if you can, that ONCE IN THE LEAGUE, this country, as a member, would have to "preserve the territorial integrity and existing political independence" of the British Empire accumulated all over the world, as it exists today.

If Mr. Cox can explain away Article X. Mr. Cox is a good explainer. But he cannot do it in a nation where all but twenty-five per cent. can read. The twenty-five per cent. is not enough to elect him.

MOTHER, 16, TRIES TO DIE

Too Frail to Work, Couldn't Support Her Baby on Government Allowance

Too frail to work, unable to support herself and her year-old baby on the $15 a month allowed by the government, Mrs. Marjorie Smith of Lynn, sixteen-year-old wife of John J. Smith, an invalid war veteran at Parker Hill Hospital, attempted suicide by drinking an ounce of iodine.

The attempted suicide took place at the wife's home, No. 445 Boston street. Immediately after her action she was afraid to die and longed to live for her baby. She went to Mrs. Alice McCormick of the same address, begging for aid.

Mrs. McCormick administered an emetic and called a physician, her prompt action undoubtedly saving the young wife's life.

"John is sick at Parker Hill. We have been receiving $40 a month from the government. That allowance was cut to $15. I then appealed to the Lynn chapter of the Red Cross and was told to 'hand the baby and go to work.' I could not part with my baby, and am not strong enough to work, so in a moment of despair I decided to end it all. But I don't want to die. I love John and I love the baby."

It is believed the girl wife will recover. Her needs and those of her daughter are being supplied by the Associated Charities with the co-operation of Miss Anna Mangan, Lynn's policewoman.

COX CHIEF ADMITS PLOT

White Tells Senate Committee League Propagandists Violated Campaign Ethics

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Democratic campaign enthusiasm has approached violation of the corrupt practices act which many States have on their statute books, according to inferential accusations made during the hearing of the Senate sub-committee on presidential expenditures.

Chairman George White of the Democratic National Committee was forced to admit on the witness stand that certain League of Nations propagandists had violated campaign ethics.

The admission and the charge which brought it forth were the results of the committee's investigation into the charges of Congressman Britten that $87,600 of British gold had been sent to the United States to sway American opinion toward adoption of the league.

SHOWS PROPAGANDA PROOF.

Congressman Britten earlier in the day had displayed to the committee a newspaper page proof of a story entitled, "Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge," which eulogizes the League of Nations. This story, which is ready for free distribution in plate form to newspapers throughout the country, has been paid for by person who will benefit by a Democratic victory, he intimated.

Chairman White had read the story he testified, and admitted he desired to contribute campaign funds toward its circulation. Although he swore no such funds had as yet been authorized the article already is in "boiler plate" form and circulars offering it to country editors without charge have been sent broadcast.

Republicans in the hearing room registered surprise when Senator Kenyon succeeded in obtaining from Chairman White what amounted to repudiation of the scheme, already promulgated, to publish throughout the country as ostensibly news matter Democratic and League of Nations advertisements and without the advertising credit line.

PLANNED TO DECEIVE READERS.

White was unable to solve the mystery as to who has put up the money for the organization of the League of Nations propaganda "boiler plate." He admitted, however, that he had under advisement the circularization of the plate story, "Uncle Sam of Freedom's Ridge," issued "free of charge" to country newspapers, by the Western Newspaper Union. This plate matter has been paid for by somebody and newspapers throughout the country have been invited to accept it free.

Miles H. McMillan, Chicago, manager of the newspaper distribution agency, testified that the circularization cost might approximate $30,000.

Manager McMillan also admitted that the paid-for plate was to be published in such a fashion that the farmer and small town readers would be unable to guess that it was political propaganda or advertising.

League Mortgages Blood of U. S. Boys Says Gore

By THOMAS P. GORE.
United States Senator From Oklahoma.

Article X. of this League of Nations imposes both a legal and moral obligation on the United States to defend the territorial independence of every nation on earth that joins the League of Nations. To say that Congress would have to declare war before this obligation could be carried out is as senseless as to say that Congress has to levy taxes to pay the Liberty Bonds which impose a legal and moral obligation resting upon this country, whether paid or not.

Article X. is the first mortgage on the body and blood—a first lien on the life of every American boy beneath the American flag.

Article X. would involve the United States in every international war that happens in all the centuries that are to come.

We want none of it.

FIGHT ON BOXING BILL GIVEN UP

Opponents Get Only 3,600 of the 15,000 Names Needed for a Referendum

Opponents of legalized boxing today admitted defeat. As a result boxing becomes legal in cities and towns when it is accepted.

Rev. E. Tallmadge Root, secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, today said his organization and those allied in the fight against boxing have been able to secure but 3,600 of the required 15,000 signatures for a referendum. The time for filing expires tomorrow.

Mr. Root declared today the church people of the State apparently cared more for vacations than they did for victory. He remarked, however, that "the reason is no significant that we feel it best to make a frank statement. Next to victory the best thing for a cause is a stinging defeat. We will not regret this episode if it arouses the churches."

MORE MINERS JOIN HARD COAL STRIKE

Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 1.—The anthracite miners' strike, which began yesterday in Lansford and Williamstown districts, spread to this district today. A large number of miners joined the strikers, who declare the entire Schuylkill district will be idle when the insurgents' call is made.

AIRPLANE FALL KILLS TWO

All-Metal Mail Carrier From Chicago Crashes to Ground Near Morristown, N. J.

Morristown, N. J., Sept. 1.—An all metal mail aeroplane bound for Chicago crashed to the ground near here today, killing both of the occupants.

It was reported that the pilot was Max Miller. The plane left Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, L. I., early today.

The gas tank exploded as the machine hit the ground and the bodies of the two occupants, buried beneath the plane, were burned beyond recognition. The machine fell to the ground on the estate of R. H. Thomas, former president of the New York Stock Exchange.

Farm hands working in a nearby field said the aeroplane appeared to become unmanageable as it was flying at a low altitude. The plane seemed about to crash into some trees but was guided away from them just before it fell.

NEW HOLDUP ON NEW ENGLAND COAL

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today suspended for five days the service order giving priority on bituminous coal to North Atlantic ports for shipment to New England. Congestion at the ports and lack of sufficient water carriers to handle the coal caused the suspension.

President Wilson today was asked by the Independent Coal Dealers' Association of Chicago to intercede with the Interstate Commerce Commission to secure a priority on bituminous coal from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kentucky to Chicago. The appeal stated the scarcity of coal is such in Chicago that the "poor and laboring classes will have hardship in obtaining fuel unless more coal is shipped at once."

ALL PAPERS AND LETTERS IN PONZI'S HOME ARE SEIZED

PRISONER AGAIN OUT OF JAIL

Taken to Receivers' Office to Aid in Examination of Documents

Bridge Jail to their offices in the Equitable Building today, to go over with them the papers secured, and to open new mail.

They declared that a large part of the material seized at the Ponzi house was written in Italian, necessitating the services of an interpreter. This interpreter, a woman, began the work of translating the documents today.

It was the purpose of the receivers to have the former "something-for-nothing" operator explain the versus papers, in the hope that they might find some bearing on the search for his assets.

PONZI TAKEN TO OFFICE.

Ponzi was also taken from jail yesterday, and after spending some time at the marshal's office in the Federal building was closeted with the receivers.

They stated that he was then taken to the School street office of the Securities Exchange Company, where he opened the safe and revealed a number of paid-up notes.

These notes, which had not been located by Federal Auditor Edwin S. Pride, had been included in Ponzi's liabilities, it was stated. It is understood that the amount was not large.

The receivers were unable to state when the public hearings would be resumed.

The case of Henry T. Nelisen, one of Ponzi's agents, charged with larceny, was continued until September 15, when he appeared in the Municipal Court today. The cases of Charles M. Brightwell, Raymond Meyers and Fred Meyers of the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company were continued to the same date. The case of Samuel Zorn, an agent of the Old Colony, was put over to September 8.

In the meantime the Suffolk County Grand Jury, called into special session at the request of Attorney-General Allen, took up the Ponzi and Old Colony Foreign Exchange cases. The Old Colony case was considered today. It was said that Ponzi witnesses could not be called for a week.

Gets His Auto Back With Repairs Free

Repairs amounting to about $50 were done on Louis Gilman's new 1920 automobile by a Cambridge automobile company yesterday.

Early in the day Gilman, who lives at No. 42 Bower street, Roxbury, reported his car stolen from Hayward place.

Several hours later the police were notified by a Cambridge auto company that someone phoned them this morning for a mechanic to call for a car in Haywood place. Seeing no occupant, they drove it to the garage and repaired it.

Sergeant Evans soon straightened the matter, which will probably stand the repair shop a loss of $50.

WOMEN PICKET HOOSAC DOCKS

Some of Longshoremen Who Struck Remain Idle; Others Resume Work

Longshoremen who struck yesterday while working on British ships in Boston harbor returned to work today, while others remained idle. At the Hoosac Tunnel docks, where the workers on the Leyland liner Nitonian went out, there was still a spirit of idleness. At the Mystic docks, where a steamer from the East Indies was affected, work was resumed.

Woman pickets patrolled the Hoosac Tunnel docks again today and had many supporters from among the idle longshoremen. The strike was branded as "illegal unauthorized and foolish," by William F. Dempsey, secretary of the Atlantic Coast district of the International Longshoremen's Association.

Dempsey and other union officials expected that half of the 100 men involved would return to work this morning. It is claimed that the men were hoodwinked by the pickets and were told that men at the East Boston docks had struck, when, as a matter of fact, they were all at work.

TAGUE CITES HIS LABOR RECORD IN VOTE APPEAL

Congressman Peter F. Tague reviewed his record on labor questions in a speech, which he urged labor should support him for re-election, speaking at Cook's in Charlestown. He read a letter sent by Chairman Edward Keating of the national campaign committee, representing the Sixteen Associated Recognized Standard Railroad Labor Organizations in the United States, to Secretary Quigley of the Boston local, Brotherhood of Steamfitters and Railway Clerks, in which Keating said that Tague's record on labor matters entitled him to support of workers.

SAYS BUILDERS ARE HAMPERED

Curtailment of Credit Retards Development, Carroll Tells Senate Committee

Alleging that curtailment of credit to builders by banks acting under orders from the Federal Reserve system is seriously interfering with new building, Bernard F. Carroll, a Dorchester builder, declared that the attitude of the Federal Reserve officials and the refusal of Boston banks to loan money on the present value of property, are the principal factors retarding building development at the hearing before the United States Senate Committee on Reconstruction and Production.

BONUS EXACTED.

Exactions of a bonus for loaning money on first mortgages was also complained of by Carroll. "I have heard of a bonus of 10 per cent. being charged for securing first mortgage money," he said. "Two-per cent. bonuses for second mortgage money are frequent occurrences."

Mrs. Anna T. Stelnauer and Mrs. Frank W. Page, representing the Housewives' League, and Whitfield Tuck of Winchester, asked Senator Calder, chairman of the Senate committee, to recommend legislation dealing with combinations which they alleged control the necessities of life.

Asked concerning his attitude toward a revision of the excess profits tax, Senator Calder said, "I am strongly inclined to think that a thorough, fundamental revision of our whole Federal taxation system will be necessary. The excess profits tax law is operating to make men put their money into tax exempt securities, to evade the Federal tax."

SPEED UP TRANSPORTATION.

In reply to a question concerning the outlook in connection with the transportation situation, Senator Calder said that railroad officials are working just now to increase the mileage per day, and to reduce the cars out of order from 7 to 4 per cent. This will help greatly to speed up transportation, he said.

Asked concerning the attitude of the committee on the proposal to place an embargo on coal exports, Senator Calder said he favored a "limited" embargo.

CHILD DYING, MANY HURT, IN 'RAZZLE-DAZZLE' CRASH

Cambridge, Md., Sept. 1.—A nine-year-old girl is dying in Cambridge Hospital today and between 75 and 100 persons, mostly children, are nursing more or less serious injuries as a result of being hurled violently to the ground when a "Razzle-Dazzle" on which they were riding at a Summer resort here collapsed.

26 ARE DEAD IN BELFAST RIOTS

Pitched Battles Fought as Torch is Used and Looting Goes Unchecked

Feiners and the shipbuilders two dead were found upon the ground. It was said that they were killed by the soldiers, who red upon the fighters.

Many more fires have been out despite the heavy troop patrols and there was further looting.

The strife spread to Southfield, where a Unionist mob attacked the Sinn Feiners, killing a man. The Sinn Feiners fought back and many persons were wounded by flying stones. A number of stores were wrecked.

Roxbury Man Sees Rioting on Streets in Ireland

Rioting and murder in Cork, Ireland, are disclosed in a letter of a Roxbury man, Thomas Cahill, of No. 22 Alaska street, now on a visit to his old home in Middleton, County Cork.

"On Saturday week last," writes Cahill, "someone shot a police inspector in the County Club on the South Mall, the gunman escaping.

"The following Sunday night some discharged soldiers met up a bunch of soldiers in King street. By way of a return match out came a flock of military motor trucks loaded with fully equipped soldiers and armored cars with machine guns firing on everybody and anything.

"Now we have the curfew law in Cork; everybody indoors between 10 p. m. and 3 a. m. The military patrols the streets during these hours, on foot, in trucks and armored cars. Anybody caught out between these hours is arrested and appears before the local court the next day. The penalty is not over 100 pounds fine or three months in jail.

"The City Government being Sinn Fein, no street lights are lighted all night, so the military have installed search lights to play on the principal streets. These are mounted on trucks.

"A bomb was exploded in the King street police barracks last week. No one was killed but the barracks were wrecked, and the house next door occupied by Dr. Donovan was a complete ruin. The police moved out the week after and the bomb manipulators came back with a little oil and finished the job, getting the two places complete."

Guard Lloyd George, Fearing an Attack

London, Sept. 1.—Today Scotland Yard entered into intense activities to meet the menace which hangs over Premier Lloyd George and other members of the Cabinet.

Officials of Scotland Yard are going through the most serious period in the history of England. It is understood that Premier Lloyd George takes seriously the threats against his life for his refusal to liberate Lord Mayor MacSwiney and is overlooking no precaution in his vacation retreat at Lucerne.

Even the children in the families of cabinet members are being guarded against attempted kidnaping. Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, who went to Lucerne to consult with the Premier, was flanked by a secret government agent throughout the trip to protect his life.

A dispatch from Geneva says that Albert Couvray, who was arrested for sending a death threat to Premier Lloyd George in a telegram, told the court he did not intend to kill the Premier, but only to frighten him into releasing MacSwiney.

A special body guard has been sent to Switzerland to protect the Premier. The uniformed police and secret service agents are co-operating to protect the lives of members of the government and save government property from destruction.

Double guards have been thrown around the Whitehall district, where the government buildings are located. Members of the Cabinet who are in the country on vacations have been warned to exercise caution. Detectives have been detailed to guard them upon their return to London.

Sinn Fein sympathizers suspected of violent intentions have been "ticketed" and are constantly shadowed by the most expert detectives in London.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN IS KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 1.—James H. Wiggin and Edgar Giles, both of Kezars Falls, Me., are being held in the county jail in Ossipee, N. H., charged with manslaughter following the death of Harry Tasco, a West Ossipee merchant, when the automobile in which they were riding, in Tamworth, crashed into a fence. Tascoe was instantly killed. The men, who, it is alleged, had been drinking, were committed to jail on warrants sworn out by County Solicitor Britton.

By today's agreement, wages prevailing before April 1 will obtain, the 20 per cent. bonus will date only from April 1 to June 31, and the existing agreement will be in effect for one year. Resumption of work is expected immediately. The strike has affected twenty-two shops and 5,000 workers.

TWO KILLED, 16 HURT IN ELEVATOR PLUNGE

New York, Sept. 1.—An elevator here dropped ten stories, killing two men and injuring sixteen others, many of them seriously. The accident occurred in a building at No. 215 Fourth avenue during the evening rush hour.

Albert A. Caplan and Max Lauter, both employed in the building, were killed. The fact that the elevator jammed at the first floor prevented a greater loss of life than if the lift had plunged through to the basement.

SAY PROVINCETOWN CELEBRATION WAS PLANNED BY BRITISH

MEETING IN LONDON SETTLED DETAILS MONTHS BEFORE

Provincetown, Sept. 1.—The recent Provincetown Pilgrim celebration was planned by the Sulgrave Institution at a meeting in London months before a Provincetown committee was organized.

That was among the least surprising of the things local residents learned from a perusal of Sulgrave Review, No. 3, copies of which were left here by New York representatives of the organization during the celebration, which until now Provincetown has considered its own idea.

More amazing were the facts:

1—That the Sulgrave Institution, composed of wealthy and influential Englishmen and Americans, intends to act as an unofficial tribunal for the adjudication of any differences arising between this country and Great Britain.

2—That is conducting a country-wide campaign through the patriotic gatherings, schools and churches of the United States to promote Anglo-American friendship.

3—That the plans include the using of the tercentenary of the sailing of the Mayflower as a day for prayers for the League of Nations.

4—That it is formulating plans for participation in the celebrations at Plymouth and Boston, next year.

From the official publication of the Sulgrave it appears that plans for the Provincetown celebration were formulated in April and May, 1919, at a meeting of British and Americans held in London. Provincetown got together and formed its tercentenary committee on the fifth of the following September.

On December 13 a special committee was appointed as an addition to the Sulgrave Institution committee, to celebrate the tercentenary, with Artemus P. Hannum as chairman, says the Review. "The official program of the celebration here the latter is described as "The national opening of all celebrations, August 26, 1920, in co-operation with the Sulgrave Institution.

All of which is setting Cape Cod wondering what part the Sulgrave will play in the celebrations of next year, when both Plymouth and Provincetown are to celebrate.

The Commonwealth and the National government have contributed heavily for the Plymouth celebration; they have also subscribed $150,000 for the permanent memorial, the beginning of the construction of which was signalized by the celebration here this year.

LEAD IN THE WORK.

Not only did the Sulgrave apparently lay the original plans for the celebration here this year, but it carried them out, inviting the speakers and guests and arranging the program. The local organizations confined their activities to the minor details, with the exception of the parade, which was about the only real local festivity. Even the dinner tendered to the guests was a Sulgrave function.

According to the Sulgrave official publication the management of American patriotic celebrations in the interest of a strong Anglo-American feeling is by no means its only activity.

Its list of efforts includes the establishment of a chair to be known as the Sulgrave Institution lectureship, to be filled annually, the occupant to be alternate years a citizen of America or of the British Commonwealth, a general lectureship bureau to include an exchange of educators' chairs of American and British history and of governments in the universities of the United States and of the British dominions, an interchange of scholars of secondary schools, an interchange of working newspapermen chosen by a committee of American editors, under which plan it is possible to invite a number of newspapermen of the British Commonwealth, or elsewhere, to take up a five-year residence in the United States for purposes of studying the institutions of the country, and the manners, aims and point of view of the American people; and to the same end of the British Commonwealth, and elsewhere, American working newspapermen likewise to acquire that comprehensive genius of other peoples, in order that they, at the expiration of their period of study, may possess that knowledge which is essential in interpreting national life and thought to the other peoples stand. And the maintenance fund for Sulgrave manor and its corresponding centre in America—not yet selected.

ARBITRATION COURT.

But most significant in this connection is article 36 of the organization's constitution, headed Mission of Sulgrave Institution, "which shows that this body, composed of prominent and influential Englishmen and Americans, intends to act as an unofficial court of arbitration in disputes between England and the United States. "In seeking such a solution by the governments concerned as will not result in ill-will and misunderstanding."

Article 36 and its accompanying note read:

"Section 1—Whenever a board of governors and councils of advisers and officers, or any general group of the membership of the institution shall express the belief that misunderstanding is likely to arise among the English speaking nations, or between these nations and some other nation, or nations, then the chancellors shall call together in special session the respective boards of governors, councils of advisers and officers of all institutions, the meeting of the international body to be held in the country raising the issue with another country, that is if the pending question lies between nations of the English speaking peoples, the issue being a matter of common and acute interests, and the institutions thus represented, shall discuss the question, or matter, at issue and shall try to arrive at some conclusion which shall mark an entire agreement among the peoples represented at the meeting as regards interpretation of the question and the means to be used in seeking such a solution by the governments concerned as will not result in ill-will and misunderstanding.

"When the institution thus represented shall have reached a conclusion in reference of the matter at issue between the nations, then a public announcement of the fact shall be made in the newspapers, in magazines and in a special bulletin to be issued by the press of the institution, setting forth the matter at issue and what the institution believes to be a method of honorable adjustment.

"This publication shall be signed by the chancellor and other officials of the institution and by members of the board of governors and the council of advisers and, this publication shall be sent to every member of the institution with the request that he add his signature to the publication, and, if possible, cause it to be published in his locality.

PROVIDES FOR MEETINGS.

"Section 2—And the members of the local institution in any given country may meet, discuss and publish its opinion on any issue and in the interests of good-will and understanding.

"Section 3—In the event that the members of the international, or local, institution so called together cannot arrive at an agreement as to an interpretation of the issue and the remedy to be applied, then the chancellors and the officers of the respective boards so called together, shall make a collective statement as to the issue in words in which all agree and a statement of the remedy to be applied and the manner of its application insofar as these is and can be general agreement.

"The statement of matter, or matters of difference, may occupy a separate and distinct place in publication, the section so included in publication to be plainly indicated as before those parts of the issue in which there is not agreement, whereupon the local, national institutions shall refer the whole matter to the international institution, whose decision in the premises shall be final, and binding on all local institutions, and when a division is observed to be inevitable in the international institution as the result of any discussion and it is evident that there will be inability to agree as to interpretation, or terms of settlement, then the chancellors shall put the question for and against and each of the two sides to the controversy shall choose one of their number and the persons so chosen shall agree upon a third person, which three shall form a committee of arbitration, and the report of the committee of arbitration, based upon a majority vote, shall be final, and the report shall issue as the decision of the institution and be so published.

SETTLING DISPUTES.

"Note—It may be well in this connection to call attention to the fact that the advent of many of the questions of recent dispute between the United States of America and other nations were anticipated long in advance of their becoming matters of bitter controversy, which questions could have been as they should have been, discussed in advance by bodies of men competent to discuss them; could have been as they should have been interpreted in order that the respective publics involved might be enabled to understand them intelligently, and hence it would have been much easier for the statesmen of two countries joining issue to settle such disputes without ill-will, or public disturbance.

"It is in this respect among other respects, that the Sulgrave Institution may and will be of benefit to the world.

"Note—The names of all benefactors of the institution will be perpetuated in a bronze memorial to be established at the Washington manor in England and their names as well as those of the Sulgrave membership, will be engrossed and kept among the permanent records in the archives of the institution."

GIVES $50,000 TO "EL" AS HYDE PARK RESERVE FUND

City Treasurer Thomas W. Murray turned over to Treasurer Henry L. Wilson of the Boston Elevated a check for $50,000 which is to serve as a reserve fund against which the "L" will draw in case the 10 per cent. fare to Hyde Park creates a deficit.

The Elevated, it is said, is nearly ready to put the single fare plan into operation. They are guaranteed against loss in the operation of the road by a legislative act under which the city must replenish the reserve fund any time it goes down to $10,000.

EDWARDS GIVES UP COMMAND

Formally Turns Over Army Department to His Successor, General Shanks

In the presence of officers and attaches at army headquarters, Brigadier-General Clarence R. Edwards today formally turned over command of the Northeastern Department to his successor, Major-General David C. Shanks.

The ceremony took place at Northeastern headquarters, No. 99 Chauncy street, and was attended by staff officers, aides and attaches of the department.

Many were affected by the departure of the former commander of the Yankee Division overseas, whose transfer to command of a brigade has been the occasion of thousands of regretful messages.

While 50,000 people looked on, the commander of the Yankee Division from a platform on the Common reviewed the parade led by veterans who had served under him in France and from whom he was separated to official order when she left Boston to occupy positions near Verdun toward the close of the war.

Seldom has Boston witnessed such a moving spectacle. There were tears in many eyes, and the General, shaken by emotion, feebly voiced his appreciation of the farewell tendered to Boston citizens and officials.

However, many feel that his separation from the New England people and his resignation of the Northeastern Department will be only temporary, and Governor Coolidge roused the crowd to lusty cheers when he said in his address:

"I am neither a prophet, nor son of a prophet, but I cherish the hope that after the fourth of March next there may be an opportunity to bring him back." Someone in the crowd shouted "with two stars."

BOY OF 15 IS HELD AS KIDNAPER

Ralph Prescott, aged fifteen, of Jefferson avenue, Charlestown, who left this city in a taxicab for Maine with two girls, aged eleven and fourteen years, on June 30, and was held at Somerville police headquarters, charged with kidnaping.

Attorney A. W. Mace, of the taxicab driver, the Prescott boy hired his automobile Monday last to go to Greenville, about seventy miles beyond Portland, Me., taking with him Loretta Prendergast, aged fourteen, No. 8 Cross street, Somerville; Ralph Hawkins, aged twelve; Louise Hawkins, aged ten, and Clarence Hawkins, aged five.

When Greenville was reached Prescott was unable to find his grandfather, who resided in that town. The Prendergast girl and two of the Hawkins children were left at the empty cottage formerly occupied by Prescott's grandfather, and the taxi driver took Prescott and Ralph Hawkins back to Somerville, turning them over to the Somerville police.

Mace stated he got no money from the boys and had to feed them on the return trip.

MILK IS BOOSTED TO 18¼ CENTS

The price of milk was boosted three-quarters of a cent a quart, and in some cases more, by the firms affiliated with the New England Milk Producers' Association. The increase, it is claimed, is to cover an additional half-cent a quart in the consumer's price and an advance to $41 a week in the wages of the delivery-men.

In Springfield and other cities the increase was one cent flat. In Boston and vicinity the advance was three-quarters of a cent. This brings the price of standard milk to 18¼ cents a quart.

H. P. Hood & Sons, in announcing the increase, which brings the price to the highest figure on record, announces it will deliver milk free to all deserving people who cannot afford to buy it for their children.

LOSS BY STORM GROWS LARGER

Total Will Reach Into Millions; Houses and Crops Ruined; Two Dead, Many Hurt

The list of casualties caused by the tornado which tore through Eastern New England, killing two men, injuring many others and ruining millions of dollars worth of property was swelled by discoveries made today.

Several persons in South Braintree, including four small children, were injured, one of them seriously, when their dwellings were torn apart by the storm, which wreaked the worst of its fury in the Braintree-Weymouth district.

Charles Paine, 73 years old, of Liberty street, South Braintree, was pinned beneath the timbers of his home when the two-story dwelling was lifted from its foundations and carried over on one side.

Mrs. Annie Gibbions, 55 years old, a housekeeper, was in the room on the second floor when the crash occurred. She was severely bruised and shaken up but escaped without serious injury.

The elderly man was held a prisoner in the ruins for two hours, until the arrival of Harry Lacie, telegraph operator at the Braintree depot, and Samuel Hawes of Liberty street.

A short distance away on the same road, in the home of C. S. Davis, Mrs. Davis and her four children were huddled in the kitchen. The children were Russell, six years; Carlton, five years; Dorothy, four years, and Ruth, ten years. The wind seized the two-story house, wrenched off the roof, half as cleanly as though it had been sawed, and dropped it in the woods thirty feet or more away.

Today the storm area, stretching in a belt 100 yards wide by twenty-five miles long through the towns of Holbrook, Randolph, Braintree, South Weymouth, Hingham and Cohasset, resembled the plains of France during the war.

On every side were ruined buildings, prostrate trees and telephone poles, crops beaten into the mud, and sewers choked with debris. Householders were returning to their demolished homes, electric light and telephone linesmen were busy repairing broken wires, while men were cutting away trees that blocked the roads.

Fully 100 persons, including at least seventy-five families, were rendered homeless. More than 250 acres of woodland were completely uprooted.

St. Francis Xavier's Church in South Weymouth was wrecked. The parish house was blown apart, the occupants almost miraculously escaping injury.

The Liberty Pole Cemetery in Hingham township was literally razed, trees being toppled and markers and headstones knocked down.

Two men were killed and dozens injured when a fireworks factory was fired by lightning at North Haven, Conn.

At East Windsor, Conn., a tobacco crop worth $2,000,000 was destroyed, and throughout the Nutmeg State crops of all kinds suffered severely.

WINTHROP LEGION POST PLANS RECORD "FROLIC"

Winthrop Post 146, A. L., is planning a frolic at Ingleside Park, Winthrop, for next Saturday. More than 5,000 tickets have been sold. William G. Harker as La Bella Rosa, gypsy fortune teller, will have a stand. Her slogan is, "Cross my palm with silver for the veterans and I will tell you what the future holds in store for you." There will also be four "Kewpie" children dispensing home-made candy. A feature will be a military equipment race by men in the service, with Captain P. W. Hickey of Fort Banks in charge. Participants will strive to outspeed each other in "falling in" and "falling out" of their equipment. Three prizes that will be given away are a $1,575 automobile, five tons of coal and a barrel of flour.

POLES WIN ON ALL FRONTS

Warsaw, via London, Sept. 1.—The Russian front held by General Budenny's cavalry army has been broken in many places, the Polish general staff announced. On the northern front the Poles have resumed their advance, meeting with little opposition from the Reds.

Much additional booty has been captured. In the Zamosoc sector, where the Russians attempted to counter-attack, they were rolled back.

Dying Mother Cries for 'Jennie's' Return

If Jennie wishes to see her mother alive she had better return home at once.

"Jennie" is the only name which the parents, at this time, care to give.

She left her home in Boston last Thursday. Three days later a letter came from New Jersey. At first it was believed she had drowned. She will be forgiven.

Jennie's mother, worried and despondent over her departure, became seriously ill. Her condition is unchanged and hopes for her recovery are doubtful unless the girl returns. If she reads this she will know what to do.

CARMEN VOTE ON ENDING STRIKE

B. R. T. Is Operating Armored Cars; Elevated and Subway Service Slightly Improved

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 1. While the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company began operation of "armored" surface cars today in an effort to break the strike, a mass meeting of the striking employees was held to consider immediate settlement of the dispute over hours and wages.

Hopes were not high that the meeting would result in the men going back to work at once, although Mayor Hylan, who persuaded the strikers to hold the meeting, believed a start toward settlement might be made.

Federal Judge Julius Mayer, who under the Brooklyn Rapid Transit receivership dominates the situation, has yielded to unconditional arbitration of wrecking conditions, but insists upon his right to review any arbitration award regarding wages.

Elevated and subway train service was slightly improved today, but the majority of Brooklynites still were forced to delayed in reaching their work, thousands depending on motor cars.

Two men, one a motorman, who were injured by missiles last night, were reported to be dying today.

SAYS WRONG MAN GOT DESK; HE APPEALS FINE

A writing desk caused a commotion in South Boston and landed Vincent Pollo of No. 12 D street in court. Judge Logan today found Pollo guilty of larceny of the desk from Hyman Kruger, who keeps a furniture store at No. 725 East Broadway. Pollo was fined $10, appealed and was held in $200. Kruger said he ordered one of his drivers to take the desk to James Hanoi, No. 8 I street, but apparently a mistake was made and the desk was left at Pollo's house. Pollo refused to give it up, insisting it was a "present" to him, according to testimony.

SUFFRAGE UNAFFECTED BY TENNESSEE ACTION

Washington, Sept. 1.—Proclamation of the suffrage amendment by the State Department is not affected by the action of the Tennessee House in reconsidering its vote for ratification, it was officially stated at the State Department today. The State Department will take no cognizance of the action in Tennessee next week.

It is understood that this decision is based upon advice of the solicitor of the department.

SAY WIFE FIRED FATAL BULLETS

Police Refuse to Accept Part of Confession of Man Held in Nott Murder

Bridgeport, Ct., Sept. 1—Despite the confession of Elwood Wade, that he murdered George H. Nott, a former Chelsea resident, the police today declare they have evidence that the victim's wife, with whom Wade was infatuated, fired the bullets found in Nott's body.

A patchwork of uncertainties surrounds the story of the killing, which ended the triangle involving Nott, his wife and Wade.

Wade, aged twenty-three, son of a wealthy dairyman, claims he alone killed Nott, beating him with a lead pipe, shooting him and stabbing him with a long knife, in the Nott home. He related to the police in his confession how he picked the body in a trunk, bearing Mrs. Nott's name and threw it into the quicksands near Trumbull, where it was found soaking by the police.

SAYS SHE HAS NOT TOLD TRUTH.

To Police Superintendent Flanagan he related how he placed the dead body, bloodstained curtains and underclothing in the trunk. He swore he inflicted the twenty-one wounds found on the body. Flanagan believed, following Wade's confession, says the defendant has not told the truth. Mary Nott, the officer declares, has positive knowledge that Mrs. Nott shot her husband as he and Wade picked arms in the fight in the Nott home.

The defendant had been paying marked attentions to Mrs. Nott since she came to this city from Chelsea two years ago. Nott objected and threatened to thrash Wade.

Sunday morning Nott beat his wife as a result of her relations with Wade, injuring her so badly that she is now at the Bridgeport hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown.

4 CHILDREN HURT WHEN AUTO RUNS DOWN HILL

Four children were slightly injured when an automobile in which they were playing on Thornton street, Revere, ran down a hill, over the curb stone and into a tree. The machine was the property of Abraham Snyder of No. 18 Thornton street and was badly damaged. The children, all of whom were cut by flying glass, were Mary Nine and Sidney Harris, six, of No. 16 Thornton street, and Samuel Wernick, five, and Abe Wernick, five, of No. 7 Thornton street.

OPPOSE FENWAY SITE FOR POSTAL DIVISION

The announcement that the Central Postoffice is to move its inquiry division out in the Back Bay Fens near the National Ball Park, has aroused a protest of citizens and business men. While this plan has not been definitely decided upon, the new project is condemned by many.

REFINED SUGAR IS CUT ONE CENT IN NEW YORK

TRY TO HALT PORTLAND'S MILLION DOLLAR PIER

Portland, Me., Sept. 1.—To prevent the construction of a $1,000,000 State pier in this city, injunction proceedings against the Pier Districts Commission were started by Mayor William R. McDonald, H. H. Gardner of South Portland and eight other taxpayers. They ask that the commission be restrained from issuing bonds to raise $325,000 to buy a site. The validity of the act passed by the last Legislature authorizing the establishment of the pier may be threshed out before the Supreme Court.

FAIL AGAIN TO GET BIDS FOR 24 WOODEN SHIPS

Washington, Sept. 1.—For the second time the Shipping Board failed to receive any bids for wooden ships in its first call for twenty-four war built craft, aggregating 100,000 tons, were advertised recently, but when the time came for opening bids there were none. The same result followed advertisement of twenty-two ships some time ago.

BURRELL AUDIT NEAR END

G. O. P. Circular, Advising His Defeat, Charges He Used "Office for Private Gain"

While the organized Republican clubs were today making their drive to defeat State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell, the audit of his accounts at the State House was being completed by State Auditor Cook's corps of examiners. It was expected that the audit would be complete for submission to the Finance Committee of the Governor's Council today.

Various rumors and gossipings of what the audit will show were floating through political channels.

Rumors of "sensational disclosures" on the one hand were running up against reports that the Treasurer's accounts would be found 100 per cent accurate.

FLOOD OF STICKERS.

While Cook refuses to talk for publication it is very strongly intimated in his department that the only "unethical" matters disclosed were the overdemonits in the Tremont and Cosmopolitan Trust companies, which have already been announced.

Burrell said that an examination of the audit will show that he has saved the State $1,250,000.

The audit was ordered by the Finance Committee at the suggestion of Governor Coolidge, it is said.

The State was being flooded today with James Jackson "stickers" to be used against Burrell at the primary next Tuesday. At least one good sized job print plant was being used to capacity to "run off" the thousands upon thousands. They will be sent to active Republican organization workers in every one of the 1,200 polling places in the State.

This message was also being sent along, addressed to "The Republican Leaders of Massachusetts":

REPUBLICAN CIRCULAR.

"We are convinced that the course of Fred J. Burrell, the present State Treasurer, in using his official position for private gain, has rendered him unfit for the position which he now occupies and for which he is a candidate for renomination by the Republican party.

"We have come to the conclusion reluctantly and only after a thorough investigation of the facts which have already been made public, but unfortunately not made public early enough to allow us to oppose him in the direct primary except through the use of stickers."

WOMEN OF MAINE GIVEN VOTING RIGHTS

Augusta, Me., Sept. 1.—Four acts amending the registration laws so that all Maine women will be able to vote at the State and national elections were passed by the special session of the Legislature. They were: To provide for the registration of women voters prior to the State and national elections of the year 1920; to prevent the denial or abridgment of the right to hold office on account of sex; to increase the number of election clerks at polling places, and empowering an election clerk to mark the ballot for a voter if that voter's religion forbids him to mark it on one of the holy days of his church.

GENUINE DIAMONDS

Weighing 10-100 Carats $12

An unusual offer. One that cannot be duplicated by any wholesale or retail jeweler in this city. This is the reason: the world's supply of diamonds comes principally from mines, and surveyors and "finds" is made these stones are sold to London in a group of men known as the "London Syndicate." To them all the dealers of the world must go for their raw material. It is the "first sight" that makes these prices so low. To those who do not get it, it means two or three profits on the diamond. For many years we have been trying through a New York importer for a first sight. At last we have one here on exhibition, and anyone buying a diamond cannot afford to miss it. For instance, we shall offer a large perfect cut brilliant Diamond, weight 10-100 of a carat, set in a solid 14k gold ring, for $12 cash. Every one will be sold with the distinct understanding that the money, every cent of it, will be refunded if any one of them can be duplicated for less than $25 in any store in Boston. Others to be sold with the same understanding at from $6 to $1000.

POLICE TO ESCORT CYCLISTS

Photo shows Fred St. Onge, director of American bicycle run, illustrating correct riding posture

As illustrated above, the proper way to ride a bicycle is to sit in the saddle with either pedal at its lowest point. In this position the rider should be able to touch the pedal with his heel, the leg being bent slightly at the knee. The front end of the saddle should be on a line directly with the cranks when they are perpendicular. The saddle should never be set more than one inch back of this line. The handle bars should be level with the saddle.

Tomorrow, in the American, Fred St. Onge will show the boys and girls of Greater Boston how to accomplish some of the "stunts" on a bicycle that made him famous on the vaudeville stage.

Have you entered your name for the six-mile bicycle run to be conducted by the Boston American, Sunday afternoon, September 12? It will cost nothing to participate, and everyone who enters is assured of a bully outing. The bicycle editor wishes to remind mothers that no racing will be indulged in. The event is simply a social run to get young and old into the great outdoors for the purpose of health and pleasure.

Every necessary precaution to make the run a big success will be taken by the American. Motorcycle policemen will be assigned to go along with the riders by Superintendent of Police Michael Crowley. The rules of the road will prevail from the time the cyclists start at Copley square at 2 o'clock until they arrive at Chestnut Hill Reservoir. A service car will follow to pick up riders and machines in case of breakdowns.

TRICK EXHIBITION.

James B. Shea, head of Boston Park and Recreation Department and Deputy Commissioner W. P. Long have promised to do their utmost to make it comfortable for the cyclists after arrival at the reservoir. At the end of the run in a natural amphitheatre the cyclists will rest while free refreshments are served.

D. Otis Robinson, president of the Coca-Cola Bottling Corporation of this city has graciously offered to supply each of the participants with a bottle of ice-cold coca-cola.

It is expected that two or more singers of high reputation will entertain the large gathering. In addition, Fred St. Onge, who will direct the run and lead the way on his thirty-five-year-old high wheel, will give an exhibition. For many years he was a leading vaudeville performer. His tramp act on a bicycle will be remembered as one of the cleverest performances of its kind ever produced on the vaudeville stage. He will give a brief talk on the proper way to ride a bicycle, followed by an exhibition of trick riding.

VETERANS TO PARTICIPATE.

Many old-time riders who once made it a regular practice to take a long bicycle ride every fair Sunday, with the Chestnut Hill reservoir well near Beacon street as their destination, have signified their intention of being present a week from Sunday.

Such a run as is contemplated by the American is eminently fitting, as Boston is the home of the bicycle. The first safety bicycle in this country was introduced here by James A. H. Underwood, and the first pneumatic tire was imported into this city. The first wooden rim used on a bicycle was manufactured here by Peter Berlo, who did more for speed than probably any other man in the country.

Proof that cycling is a highly beneficial exercise if properly indulged in is shown in the cases of Nat Butler and Jimmy Moran, the old-time six day racers, who are both still active and healthy. The condition of Charles Henshaw, Watson Coleman and Congressman Alvin T. Fuller, leading Boston business men, who were old-time devotees of cycling, is additional proof of the healthfulness of the pastime.

Every boy and girl, man and woman, in Greater Boston, who owns a bicycle or can borrow one is invited to participate, free of charge, in the run a week from Sunday. Just drop a postcard to the "Bicycle Editor, Boston American, Boston 8, Mass.," giving your name, address and age and you will be listed for the big run. Do it now!

THE DEAF HEAR

Mattapoisett, Mass., Aug. 19, 1920.—Dr. D. J. Walsh: Dear Sir: You must think I am very unappreciative not to have answered your letter before. The reason is, I have just got in from sea, as a fisherman. I came to your office and my ears were operated on Friday. When I left your office I could hear what I had your medicine and was instructed. Saturday morning I could hear some. Sunday morning I got up and heard the church bells ring. It seemed like waking up in a new world. I can hear common conversation now, very well. I am very grateful. I can't thank you enough for what you have done. I am pretty well known around the Cape, from Chatham to Mattapoisett. You have my name to herald the facts what you have done for me. Very gratefully yours, (Signed) FREDERIC R. ELDRIDGE.

Others who hear now, thanks to the Osmo-Chemic Physician, are Fred Hawker, 142 Brookline st., Lynn; Arthur Landry, 62 Hartford st., Fitchburg, Mass.; J. A. Catoen, 27 Auburn st., Brockton; Mrs. Etta Wright, 12 Brown st., Cambridge; John Curren, 57 Washington st., Quincy; G. C. Austin, 13 School st., Belmont; Geo. NOW OR NEVER!

ONCE in the life of every man comes the crucial moment---the hour of destiny; then if ever must he exercise the keenest judgment to gather the utmost from any situation, whether it means men, money or nations. The king on his throne, the general in the saddle or the man in the ordinary walks of life, reading this page from his daily newspaper, each must use the intelligence that nature gives him to make his own decisions for his own good---self reliant, confident and independent of the incompetent advice of others.

Your Day of Decision Has Come

WITHOUT a note of warning, from a clear sky comes the announcement that if you are to get your share of the capital stock of the Kelley Tire and Rubber Company, you must act now—Today. Thousands of investors in all parts of the East have subscribed thousands of dollars to this stock; have helped to establish sales and service stations; have furnished the money to build one of the finest Tire plants in the world, equip it with the most modern and efficient machinery and supply it with great stocks of fabric and rubber. THE GREAT INITIAL BATTLE HAS BEEN WON. The factory is now nearing completion and will soon be turning out Tires and Tubes at the rate of a thousand a day. Soon the profits of this great enterprise will be pouring in to build up a reserve for a greater plant and to share with the stockholders to the extent, it is expected, of 25 to 50 per cent.

Did you ever follow the history of any one of the great, successful tire industries—or any industry, right here in your own home town, for instance. You have observed, no doubt, that the initial investors were venturesome men, of the same type that discovered America or founded this country of ours; those men had grit. The self-styled sages and wiseacres with little courage and panic-stricken purses took seats on the side lines in merry criticism. As time rolled on the wise ones were still poor critics and the venturesome and courageous citizens rode by in luxurious motor cars.

This brief sketch sounds like romance, and it is romance—the great romance of American industry, whose brilliant success has been emblazoned on the pages of the nation's history, and it will endure until the end of time. Think of the humble beginning of that brave pioneer, Henry Ford, whose name is a household word for industrial genius. Scoffed at in the beginning by petty bankers, today he is honored by monarchs and presidents. Recall the pioneers who established the great tire companies, the Goodrich, the Goodyear, the United States, the Firestone, the Kelly-Springfield, and even the less noted ones like the Mohawk and Norwalk or a myriad of others. All of these companies had a small beginning, some of them very small. But today they are without exception wonderfully successful companies and earning handsome profits.

The Kelley Tire and Rubber Company has every reason to expect the same measure of success as any one of these companies. Why? Because it enters the field at the best time possible, when there are thousands of tire users instead of a few, a scarcity of supply and an unprecedented demand. In addition it enters the field ready and able to compete with the biggest and most successful. It has an excellent product, it has many factory controlled sales and service stations, it has an intelligent and competent organization, and it will have one of the finest built, most efficient and completely outfitted plants anywhere in America, barring none. This plant will be finished in a few weeks' time.

It is no speculation to buy this stock now. All the preliminary work and financing has been done. The plans will go through, just as outlined, whether you buy a dollar's worth of stock or not. More money means greater strength and quicker success for our stockholders and the company—that is why this stock is offered you. You are acquiring an interest in a new enterprise that has reached the level where even the most conservative can invest thousands of dollars and look for dividends of unexpected size the coming year.

This, in a word, is the brief outline of one of the finest investments it has ever been your privilege to put your money into. Thousands of others are delighted to be connected with it, and you have that same opportunity today—but not beyond. Tomorrow it will have passed you by. It may mean the dawn of prosperity for you. Are you ready?

DECLARES SUGAR ISN'T HELD BACK

Revere Company Has Sold More Than it Can Produce, Says Official

H. E. Worcester, vice-president of the Revere Sugar Refinery, has written the following letter to the American:

Editor American:

"In your article last evening referring to the Revere Sugar Refinery it appears to me that the conclusions you draw from my statements of testimony before the Attorney-General are in important respects erroneous.

"You referred to the fact that the refinery has on hand 40,000,000 pounds of sugar, giving the impression that we are holding it back for a higher price.

"The fact is, as clearly stated by me, that the 40,000,000 pounds of sugar is raw sugar and is only a little more than the stock of raw material which we customarily have on hand. The capacity of our refinery is about a million pounds a day, and during the present year, barring the period when the operations were suspended by strike, the refinery has been turning out approximately that amount of sugar daily.

"We have tried to have on hand at least a month's supply of raw sugar so that the refinery would not be in any danger of lack of raw material. At the present time, owing to lack of sufficient railroad transportation in this country, we have not been able to move our refined sugars as rapidly as necessary, and consequently the refinery has had to run at somewhat less than full capacity for several weeks. This has resulted in an accumulation of raw sugar.

SYSTEM OF SELLING.

"If the railroads had carried away the refined sugar which we have sold we should undoubtedly have continued running at full capacity, and the stock of raw sugar on hand would be much less than at present.

"The reports also conveyed the erroneous impression that we were holding back some amount of sugar for a greater price. The fact is, as explained in my statement to the Attorney-General, that up to the present time, we have sold a greater quantity of sugar than we have been able to produce, and we are still filling unfilled orders.

"Recently, however, there has been an absolute cessation of demand by our customers, the wholesalers. When asked for our present price for refined sugar, I stated that we had no price. The reason was because there is no demand. When the demand returns we shall make a price and sell our sugar.

"At present the 40,000,000 pounds of raw sugar which we have on hand cost us an average of 1714 cents a pound. If we are required to sell it for less than that amount, plus the refining cost, we shall, of course, be selling it at a loss. On the other hand, if the price of raw sugar continues as at the present or falls further, and we add lower-priced sugar to our stock, the average of all will fall, and we can afford to sell refined sugars at a lower price. Just what will happen before the demand for refined sugars returns I cannot prophesy and this is the impression I intended to give in my testimony.

"ENTIRELY ERRONEOUS."

"The impression which one would receive from reading the newspaper reports that the refinery has been holding back any of its product is entirely erroneous. The truth is clearly shown when judging its operations for the entire year. Since January 1, 1926, when the operations of the refinery were released from Federal control, we have received approximately 180,000,000 pounds of raw sugar from which we have manufactured and sold approximately 113,000,000 pounds of refined sugar.

"We now have on hand 40,000,000 pounds of raw sugar waiting to be refined, but only 6,500,000 pounds of refined sugar unsold. Our policy has been to keep our refinery employed at the fullest possible capacity, and for that purpose to keep a constant supply of raw sugar on hand, and then to sell refined sugar as rapidly as possible. Most of our sales are made in advance, that is, sales of refined sugar are made before the product is manufactured. All our sales are made at current prices, and at no time or period have we ever held back or stored any quantity of sugar for the purpose of obtaining higher prices.

We have purchased enough raw sugar to carry us through until the next grinding season, and, unless there is a total cessation of demand for refined sugar, we expect and intend to sell it as rapidly as we can.

"We purchase all our sugar from the United Fruit Company. The price which we pay is the market price actually existing on the day when the sugar is shipped from Cuba. In other words, the same price at which the United Fruit Company could sell the same sugar in Cuba if it were not sold to us.

"I trust that you will give this correction of your statements the same publicity that you gave to the reports yesterday.

"REVERE SUGAR REFINERY,
"H. E. Worcester,
"Vice-President."

OUTPUT RECORD FOR NORTHWAY

Natick Firm Builds 100 Trucks in July; New Passenger Model Nearly Ready

Although the plant of the Northway Motors Corporation at Natick is only about a year old, rapid strides have been made in the manufacturing of Northway Trucks.

The total floor space of the plant occupies 134,500 square feet and comprises one complete truck unit, one metallurgical testing unit, one block-testing engine unit, all equipped mechanically and in operations, and a two-story concrete passenger car plant.

The production of trucks for the month of July was one hundred, which included the making of the motor completed under the personal supervision of R. E. Northway, its designer.

Mr. Northway is too well known in the automobile engineering field to need any further introduction. It goes without saying that under his personal direction in building his own motor 100 per cent. efficiency must be obtained.

During the month of August, that is up to the 26th, one hundred trucks had been completed which indicates an increase in production of four or five per cent over July. The present truck capacity of the plant is ten trucks per day. A production is scheduled to increase up to

In regard to the Northway motor car, the passenger model, officials of the company announce that its automobile is something to look forward to. Power and style and up to the minute features are promised in this creation of Mr. Northway's and full details will be publicly announced later.

In connection with this announcement it is only fitting to say that A. J. Roemer is now connected with the Northway Corporation and is working at Natick designing the body and chassis for the passenger car, co-operating with Mr. Northway and his engineers. Mr. Roemer is well known as the designer of the Roemer and Murray.

In securing Fred S. Channonhauser as production manager the Northway company has a big asset. Mr. Channonhauser was the production manager for the government in the manufacture of Liberty Motors during the war.

M. S. Beebee, the sales manager of the Northway Motor Sales Company, which distributes the entire output of the factory, is a firm believer in service to the owners and has established Northway service stations wherever there is a sales branch. These service stations are fully equipped for factory service and offer an unusual service plan.

A service truck is sent out on call, either day or night, to repair, transfer the load so as to enable the owner to continue the trip. This service truck is furnished to the truck owner practically at cost until his own truck is returned for duty.

MAC-LITE BATTERY WINS FAVOR OF AUTOISTS

A new style battery was offered motorists this Spring, known as the Mac-Lite Storage Battery. According to P. H. MacNeill of Farley & MacNeill, the distributors of this battery, it has proved such a success that even the guarantee has been raised from one to two years.

In speaking of the merits of this type of battery Mr. MacNeill says: "The reasons for the success which the Mac-Lite Battery has achieved in such a short time is due to new methods of manufacture, discovered and developed by Mr. Wright, one of the best known storage battery engineers in the country. A new addn greatly to th life and power adds greatly to the life and power of the battery and has a tendency to prevent short circuits. These plates do not buckle. A new method of treating the separators by electrolyte instead of chemicals is used which leaves them free of all foreign organic matter.

"The Mac-Lite is manufactured with Acid-Tight Solid Rubber terminals which helps to eliminate corrosion, that bug-bear of battery troubles.

"We have established a branch service station in the basement of our store at No. 105 Federal street where we can demonstrate how the Mac-Lite is made and how it acts."

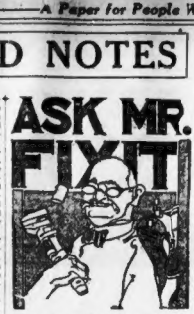
ASK MR. FIXIT



Dear Mr. Fixit: Please tell a why my 1919 Ford goes in speed when I up. It has done it three times now. I jiggle the blind wheel and take off transmission cover and pull out in 10 and crank 5 minutes and then connect. I have the set screw on the brake screwed down as far as it will go. What is the matter? What can be done? What got caught and makes them get stuck so fast?

A. B.

From your description it would see that the throw out on the transmit brake ring is frozen to the shaft. While it might be the rear loose and was pretty sure to be lack of sufficient oil, you can have to take out the engine and rest thoroughly, which is some job. I would suggest that you go over your oil line by running speedometer cable through the pipes to make sure all are feeding properly.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I installed D. U. 4 Bosch magneto on a Model 31 Grand Four Hupp. Gear set up to yesterday, but poor results when started. Will not spark at all. I have tried every adjustment I know with fairly good results, but it will not spark. I have tried firing five different plugs they all acted the same and grounded it and had same results. It would fire in six or four times regularly and skip a couple times. Two and three plugs are recus Will explain in detail. After I replaced end of compensating stroke, distributor is center of segment in full retard and it was at that point. I am inclined to believe magneto is at fault, there does not seem to be enough spark coming through to make it jump the spark gap, but it does seem to intermittently seems to be some when advanced. Should the lifting motor of magneto be taken out of the magneto? Or suggest some other way to tell if my magneto is working. Greenfield. R. W.

A Bosch D. U. 4 magneto has parallel, that is, a spark occurs in both rear ends and four and two and three at the same time although of course firing only one under. Because the spark occurs at the op time in the other. There is a possibility you have your wires crossed, but you should be able to check this up easily. In this case cylinder would fire properly and neither two would not. However, adjusting firing the magneto is no job for an amateur would suggest that you take it to some good local dealer at Springfield and to an expert look it over. Your magneto may be weak if it fires two cylinders proper.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a loss crank shaft on my machine and I find hard to locate one. Could you kindly tell me where I could get one, the same or near-time to Little. It is a 1912 runabout has four cylinders, and as I understand, Hupmobile from bought them out. Would be much obliged if you could tell me who to get one. Thanking you in advance, I am A. E. N. Bridgewater.

MONTREAL WIN FROM MARTIN

Latter Aggressor All the Wa and Draw Would Have Been Proper Verdict

By JACK CONWAY.

Young Montreal is today the proud bantamweight champion of New England. He grabbed the grand little when Referee Phil Pour awarded him the decision over Tey Martin after twelve rounds of searing fighting at the Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building.

A draw would have been the proper verdict in the opinion of the writ. While Montreal landed the cleaner blows, Martin was the aggressor n practically every round. At times he was obliged to chase his opponent. He also scored with many deadly shots to the body.

Montreal's brilliant finish was probably what caused Power to give hi the verdict. Going into the tenth round Martin was leading by two to one as far as points went. Then Montreal changed his style of milling. Up to this point he had permitted Martin to set his own pace and had depended upon countering to get a few credit marks for himself.

In the tenth frame it was a different story. Montreal went forward every time Martin dashed at him. When Terry would let drive with a wide right-hand swing, Montreal would either hook his left to his rival's jaw or cut in with a short right-hand smash to the head or body. This enabled him to pile up many points. The tenth round was Montreal's by a comfortable margin. The same tactics gained him the honors in the eleventh stanza.

The twelfth round saw Martin battling as he had in the earlier part of the contest and he finished out front.

Martin's work in the first nine rounds of the encounter was easily enough to offset Montreal's late rally. Montreal had done the better boxing, but Martin had shown the best fighting qualities.

The preliminary card was replete with substitutions and knockouts.

The LEADER OF LIGHT WEIGHT CARS

Northway

Northway Progress

Briefly Summarized by

Jos. F. Cunningham

A group of Massachusetts men organized the Northway Motors Corporation under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts believing that New England was exceptionally situated geographically for the manufacture of Motor Products, particularly because of the large number of high grade mechanics, and because of the extensive manufacture of Motor Parts in New England, and because of its advantageous location for shipment to foreign countries.

This work was undertaken at a time when the United States was deeply involved in the World War, and when the raising of capital and securing of materials was next to impossible; at a time when many business men believed any attempt to organize a new industry of this character was impossible. In spite of seemingly unsurmountable obstacles, the company was successfully financed and purchased an admirable factory location in Natick on the main line of the Boston and Albany railroad.

Within 18 months after the ground was broken for building a modern factory comprising over 134,000 square feet of floor space, fully equipped with the most approved machinery, was completed, and was turning out 100 trucks per month.

The Company is planning further extension of its buildings and preparing to produce in the near future passenger cars and increase truck production to 250 per month. The factory employs upwards of 700 persons, the weekly payroll being approximately $20,000. The gross monthly income at the present time, the same being cash received for trucks built, and after deducting all sales discounts, is in excess of $250,000 per month. In my opinion the Company has arrived at the period of substantial earnings, which earnings should be steadily increasing from month to month, permitting the return of gratifying profits to all Northway stockholders.

The Company has

Materials on hand and in process of manufacture	$1,000,856.11
Machinery and Equipment	560,024.29
Completed Factory and Plant Buildings	488,286.00
Spur Track, and Freight Yard	45,668.00
Land and Improvements	80,856.10
Investments	600,000.00

It is our ambition to make this business of ours one of the largest in the country, and I firmly believe we can, and if we are successful the results are certain to be highly profitable.

We know proven that Massachusetts is the logical place to develop an automotive industry.

BAY STATE GOLFERS GATHER AT ROSLYN FOR TITLE MATCHES

OUIMET HOPE OF LOCALS

Tolley, English Champion, Among the Star Players After Amateur Honors

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford and Fred J. Wright, Jr., foremost of Massachusetts golfers, who are entered in the national amateur golf championship to be played beginning Labor Day arrived at the scene of action today and began practice over the Engineers' course, Roslyn, Long Island.

The Massachusetts golfers were not the only early arrivals, for Davidson Herron, amateur champion, has been at the Engineers' Club since Monday, and others out today included Cyril Tolley, British amateur champion; Tom Armour, French amateur champion; Chick Evans and Harold Weber. The other principals were expected before the week-end.

Players Take Special Pains This Year

Never before have the amateurs taken pains to arrive at the course so long before the tournament date. They have heard of the difficulty of the Engineers' layout and wish to become acquainted with it before they get into what will be the most severe test amateur golfers ever indulged in. Ouimet in taking no chance on not being familiar with the course. He has engaged George McLean, the Great Neck professional, to play over the Engineers' course with him. McLean knows the place well, and has scored some fine rounds there.

That it is a difficult eighteen holes is certain, for the best Dave Herron could do in his first practice round was an 86.

The Canadian International team will arrive at the Engineers' Club Thursday. It will include the present Canadian champion and two former champions as well as seven other leading Canadian amateurs. After playing in the team match with the United States on Saturday the Canadians will take part in the championship.

Hard to Dope Who Will Win

It is difficult to guess who will win this championship, but the favorites are Francis Ouimet, Bobby Jones, Chick Evans and Tom Armour. Armour will undoubtedly be the most formidable of the four Britishers, for he has been in America for some weeks and has become well versed in the roll of American turf.

His showing in the Canadian open, where he tied with Douglas Edgar and Murray for first place, and at the national open in Toledo, where he qualified, give him claim to consideration. That he is in his game is certain for he scored a 73 Tuesday at New London and impressed Douglas Edgar and Lou Tellier to the extent that these fine professionals feel he has an excellent chance to win at Roslyn.

Bay State Pins Faith on Francis Ouimet

Massachusetts golfers look to Francis Ouimet to come through. He is in far better health than he was last year at Oakmont, and there is no danger of his being overgolfed, for he has saved himself as never before, for the amateur championship. He has played in few tournaments this year and should be ready for all comers by Labor Day.

The qualifying round will be a great scramble, for but thirty-two of the fast field of some 200 will get into the match play. The qualifying round of the national amateur championship always brings upsets and a few of the stars are almost certain to fall in it.

Last year Perry Adair and Oswald Kirkby failed to qualify. They were counted as among the best in the field. Kirkby's tea shot at the seventeenth hole of the final round last year caught a trap, and he took a six to the hole, and failed to qualify by a stroke.

REFEREE DENIES HE PUT BOXERS OUT OF RING

Chick Hayes and Bobby Josephs were not put out of the ring at Portsmouth, N. H., the other night, according to Jack Murphy, who refereed the bout. Murphy says that the match was stopped by the promoter. He asserts that he was satisfied the boys were giving their best efforts. He added that he realized that it was impossible for them to give a sensational battle as they know each other's styles.

The Portsmouth fans were asked if they wanted the tussle to continue, according to Hayes, and they said they did. Hayes charges that inasmuch as there was a small house the promoter was looking for an out to avoid paying the contestants.

BIG PROGRAM AT READVILLE

Three Feature Races on Card Today—Colorado Favorite to Win Massachusetts

Thousands turned out today to see the Grand Circuit races at Readville, the feature races being The Massachusetts, The Pilgrim and the three-year-old division of the Horse Breeders' Futurity, not to mention the unfinished events postponed from yesterday because of the heavy rain which put the track out of commission.

If all of the events scheduled for today are raced to a conclusion the grand total of the money won will amount to a small fortune, no less than $20,860 being the value of the program. Not since the American Derby was raced at Readville several years ago has such a large sum been distributed in purses hereabouts in a single day.

E. Colorado looked the best of the trotters entered in The Massachusetts, while the Boston mare, Margaret Dillon, was considered the fastest of the pacers in The Pilgrim, although Willington and Darvester were expected to make the pace hot for the mare from the Sunshine Stable.

Baroness Cochato and Bonnie Del made short work of their opponents in the 2:18 trot and 2:10 trot, the respective events in which they started yesterday. Millie Irwin won the first heat of The President stake after a gruelling battle with Peter Coler down the home stretch, but the Peter the Great trotter turned the tables the next time out and his admirers confidently expect him to capture the final heat today.

NILES TO PLAY NET CHAMPION

Many Star Matches Decided Today in Forest Hill Tennis Tourney

Forest Hills, L. I., Sept. 1—The tournament for the national tennis singles championship went into the third round today at the West Side Tennis Club, with all members of the Davis Cup team still undefeated.

Of the quartet R. Norris Williams, 2nd, the former national champion, probably faces the hardest test in today's matches, for he is paired with Willis E. Davis, the young Californian.

William M. Johnston, the champion, is paired today with Nathaniel W. Niles, the Boston veteran.

Samuel Hardy, captain of the Davis Cup team, will meet William T. Tilden, 2nd, who recently won the British championship. Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh is paired with Frank T. Anderson, the young New Yorker.

In case Williams and Johnston both win their matches today they will meet tomorrow in the fourth round.

ZBYSZKO FAVORITE FOR CONTEST WITH YOSKO

Waldek Zbyszko, Polish wrestling champion, has been made an early betting favorite for his finish match with Frank Yosko, Lithuanian champion, which will be staged at the Revere Cycle Track on the afternoon of Labor Day.

The other feature match will find Renato Gardini, Italian star, grappling with Bill Demetral of Chicago. Promoter Lou Darvis has opened headquarters at the American House on Hanover street.

Johnny Alecks Out For Wilson Bout

Johnny Alecks, Philadelphia middleweight, is the latest candidate for Johnny Wilson's title. Alecks arrived in Boston today on his way to Quincy where he battles Brooklyn Battling Nelson in a twelve-round bout before the Coliseum A. A. tomorrow night.

"If I beat Nelson, I want to get a match with Wilson," said Alecks. "I can hit harder than the middleweight champion. I am also more aggressive than he is. So why shouldn't I be able to beat him?"

BRAVES HALT RACING REDS

Champions Are Stopped and Dodgers Step Into the First Position

Cincinnati, Sept. 1—Having yanked the Reds back, just when the world champs thought they were about to start straight for their second pennant, the Braves were hopeful today of keeping up their record of winning at least two games in Cincinnati every trip this season.

They made their final Cincinnati appearance of the season today and with John Watson booked to hurl they had a good chance of copping the odd game of the series.

Clean hitting won the second game for the Braves but they were aided by some stupid baseball by the champs. Moran's men were especially dull on the bases. Groh tried to stretch an ordinary triple into a homer on a diamond that had just received a ten-minute shower. Daubert dashed home from second on a simple grounder to Ford, and Roush and Rath both were caught off second at critical points in the game.

The Talbots expect an easy victory over the Butlers at Soldiers Field, Cambridge, tonight. This will be the final game in the Department Store League for both teams, and with the Talbot nine having an excellent chance of tying for first place in the league standing with the Hoveys, great ball is looked for.

The Hoveys, the present league leaders, have two games yet to be played. The Hovey ball tossers will meet the Shawmut in a postponed game tomorrow, and the Shepard nine in a protested game next Tuesday.

A defeat for Hoveys in either of its two games, together with a Talbot victory over the Butlers, will bring about the expected tie.

SAYS WHITE SOX SURE OF FLAG

Gleason Not Worried Over Defeat—Chicago Makes Ready for Big Series

By NICK FLATLEY.

Hotels in Chicago are pretty much crowded and it's always well to have rooms reserved far in advance. This was the interesting information William Kid Gleason, manager of the White sox, handed us today when asked what he thought of his team's chances of repeating in the A. L.

Four straight defeats apparently mean nothing in the life of the manager of the champions. He expects to win the whole series once more, though, like a wise bird, he refuses to come out and say the same flatly. He has all the materials and adults it, and he has the managerial ability to mould them properly, which he doesn't admit, being somewhat shy of the personal pronoun.

Long Home Series Aid to White Sox

After the Alabasters leave the Fenway, they hike for home, where they take a stretch of seven-game games. They're leading the league now, and that long stand on the native pasture should make the final drive very comfortable.

Manager Barrow had a pair of his right-handers ready to go in Hoyt and Mayers, with the former's chances seeming brighter. The Mayers party has been doing just pro work the past few days and may not be in the best fettle for another victory. He has that habit since the erstwhile leaders let him go.

CALLAHAN ON WITH TENDLER

Leading Lightweights to Clash at Lawrence in Feature Bout Labor Day

With the Martin-Moutreal bout a matter of history, the attention of the boxing fans centres on the twelve-round tussle between Lew Tendler and Frankie Callahan which will be staged at Johnny Cuddy's open-air arena at Lawrence on the afternoon of Labor Day. It is the most important lightweight battle to be arranged by a New England club in years. Tendler and Callahan are two of the world's greatest 133-pound boxers. They are so good that Benny Leonard has refused to meet either of them.

Phil Glassman, manager of Tendler, recently claimed the world's lightweight championship for his protege. He charged that Leonard is a welterweight and unable to make 133 pounds. Tendler can make this notch easily.

The Quaker City favorite is a southpaw and a terrific puncher. He has won most of his big bouts inside of the limit. Callahan packs his heavy artillery in his right. When these two boys were put at the old Arena several years ago, the fans witnessed a stirring slugging match. Tendler won when Callahan was obliged to withdraw from the contest on account of a broken hand.

Callahan has been training at North Reading for the past month and is confident he will conquer Tendler. In the event he scores a victory, Francis intends to demand a match with Leonard.

Johnny Cuddy announces that Boston fans may secure reservations from Mr. Chester at No. 343 Washington street.

CHAPTER XXV.—Continued

THE tense silence between them lasted a full minute. Then, very slowly, Heller turned toward the cleakroom where, just within the door, his wife stood looking at him.

His sanguine features had lost all their color in the grayish pallor that suddenly aged him. He went toward her; she made the slightest movement of recoil, but faced him calmly.

"I'm sorry," he said in a voice like a whisper. "I am—the fool that you think me. . . . I'll take myself off."

He bowed to her pleasantly, turned and passed Cleland with his hat still in his hand.

"I'm sorry, Jim; I know you're all right; and I'm all wrong—all wrong——"

"Come to the studio tomorrow. Will you, Harry?" whispered Cleland.

But Heller shook his head, continuing on his way to the street.

"I'll expect you," added Cleland. "Come about noon."

The other made no sign that he had heard.

CHAPTER XXVI.

STEPHANIE was awake with the sparrows the next morning and her face betrayed not a trace of the pallor and fatigue which had made Helen a little anxious when she came into the studio after her interview with Cleland.

"I never had such a sleep in my life!" she announced, sauntering into Helen's room, already bathed and dressed, when at last she heard the latter's bath running. "I feel about sixteen, Helen."

"You look it, dear. What was the matter with you last night? Jim came about nine."

"Did he?" said the girl, turning to conceal a smile. "What did you do to entertain him?"

"Tried about you," said Helen, watching her where she stood at the sunny window, absently pleating the sash curtain between idle fingers.

"Was he edified?"

"He seemed to be. When I changed the subject he went away."

Stephanie, at the window, suddenly laughed outright, but her back remained turned.

"Men are funny," she said.

"Women are funnier, Steve."

"What! Are you a traitor to your sex?"

"Sometimes," said Helen, absently. "I feel that my sex betrays me—and a few others of my own mind."

Stephanie turned and looked at her, still laughing:

"Like the Kittie," she said, "you complain that the revolt of the regiment is marching out of step with you."

"There's only a corporal's guard of us in step to the music," smiled Helen. . . . "You're looking radiant, Steve! I've never seen you so enchanting."

"I feel like enchanting the world—like a sorceress all ready for business. This is a wonderful day, Helen."

"What are your engagements?"

"Two lessons this morning. . . . I don't know whether I'll go. Luncheon with Oswald at Tinto's. But it's so stuffy there in June, and the Summer garden is so grubby!"

"You're not going, then?"

"I don't know. I don't want to hurt this feelings," said the girl reluctantly.

Helen sat up, flung off the bedclothes and swung her superb young body out of bed.

"My bath's running over. Sit there and talk, Steve"——

The Question of Marriage

But Stephanie turned to the window, her lips still edged with the same indefinable smile, and gazed at space through the netted squares of sunshine.

Breakfast was served in the studio presently. Helen joined her in bathrobe and slippers, knotting the belt around her waist.

"I'm wonderfully hungry," exclaimed Stephanie.

"It's more than you've been for several weeks, Steve."

Again the girl laughed, not meeting Helen's glance.

"How do you think of marriage?" she inquired presently. "I hope you haven't the very horrid ideas of Harry Belter."

"What are Harry's ideas?"

"He says it's the curse of civilization," said Stephanie, "and the invention of meddlesome and superstitious imbeciles. He says that the impulse toward procreation is mechanical and involuntary, and ought to be considered so without further personal responsibility; and that the State should nourish and educate whatever children were worth saving to replenish the waste, and put the others out of the way."

"Harry," remarked Helen, "talks for talking's sake very often."

"He's quite serious. His ideas are revolting. Never have I known a man who is so savagely an iconoclast as Harry Belter."

Helen smiled.

"Harry is a talker, dear. He doesn't believe a word of it. Harry Belter is, by nature, a fat, happy, witty, clever and very sentimental young man who also is so overwhelmingly selfish that anything which happens to annoy him he considers a catastrophic calamity involving the entire civilized world in ruin!"

"What!"

The Root of the Matter

"Do you wish to know what really is the matter with Harry Belter? Shall I tell you what actually has inspired this noisy iconoclast and moral anarchist with the urge for talking?"

"I'll tell you. Three years ago he married a child of seventeen and started to mould her to suit himself. The only trouble was that she had a mind. She knew what she wanted to do and to be. She could not understand why this was incompatible with being his wife, especially as he had won her by his loudly reiterated advocation of personal liberty and the fundamental necessity for the development of individualism."

"How do you know this?"

"She told me."

"When?"

"Three years ago."

"Who is she, Helen?"

Helen answered pleasantly, looking into the curious gray eyes.

"Her name, on the stage, is Marie Cliff. I have known her for a long while and am very fond of her."

Stephanie, scarlet, winced under her faintly humorous smile.

"They are divorced, then," she managed to say.

"No."

"Why not?"

"She has never given him any cause," said Helen slowly. "A woman, of her own knowledge, can truly say one word against her character, nor can any man. She merely revolted at the tyranny he attempted, in the guise of affection, of course. She refused to be deprived of the liberty to think and act as she chose."

Something to Think About

"She rejected the worn-out conventions with which he attempted to chain her—this apostle of personal freedom. She cared for her profession—he married her when she was on the stage—and she resolutely insisted on her liberty to continue."

"The result was a family smash —her return to the stage. And since then she has refused to accept a penny from him and has supported herself by her profession, and sometimes quite foolishly, too."

"And that is the real story of Harry Belter and Marie Cliff. So you can believe as much as you choose of his views on matrimony!"

After a flushed and painful silence, Stephanie said.

"Do you believe this to be true?"

"If one woman can judge and understand another, what I have told you is true, Steve. Long ago I was the child's confidante. She told me this quite frankly, and in a manner which makes the truth of it unmistakable." . . . We have become great friends, this little dancer and I. I don't think I ever knew a simpler nature or a more transparently honest one." . . . And that is why I was not worried at any little ephemeral romance that might amuse the child with Jim Cleland." . . . I was too certain of them—both," she added, looking calmly into the gray eyes that intended again and fell under her serene gaze.

"I'm a rotten little beast," said Stephanie

"You're very feminine."

"Oh, Helen, I'm not. I'm a rotter. I didn't know it was in me. I thought I was above such things——"

"Nobody is, Steve, until they make the effort. High thinking requires more than a natural generosity and sympathy—more than innate sentiment. It is an attainment; and there is none without effort. And effort sometimes hurts."

Stephanie Repents

"I want to speak to that girl when she comes in," said Stephanie.

"I never have; I've never noticed her at all. I shall ask her to tea."

Helen laughed.

"She'll be here pretty soon. Of course you're not supposed to know about Harry."

"Of course not. But I'll make amends for my incivility. I was a beast! But—it's confusing — and hard for a girl to understand when a girl like that is so unconventional with one's—one's——"

"Brother," suggested Helen drily.

"Yes • • • I'm terribly ashamed. • • • Does Jim know?"

"About Harry Belter? No. I don't think anybody does."

"What a shame that man is!" exclaimed Stephanie hotly.

"No. He's a typical man, dear. Some women yield, some resist, that's all. And the man never has the slightest idea that he is tyrannizing. If you tell him that he'll be amazed and furious. He'll point out to you all the love and affection and solicitude and money he's lavished on the object of his adoration; he'll portray for you her obstinacy, her coldness, her shocking ingratitude for benefits received. He really believes himself a martyr.

"Steve, man's idea is still that to the victor belong the spoils. We are the spoils of the chase, dear. His conventions were made to contain us in the sort of game-preserve before capture; cage us after we are made prisoner. His laws fetter us; a misstep ruins us; irregularities never impair him. That is the ancient view; that, still, is the secret view of man; that is the inborn conviction regarding us and himself. • • • And, very slowly, we are beginning his education."

When a Girl Marries -:-

Romantic Serial by a Noted Author

By Ann Lisle

THE message from Uncle Ned didn't come until I had finished my solitary meal, and then it was not directly from him, but a second-hand affair from someone who reported over the wire:

"Mr. Pettingill says he will call Mr. Harrison first thing in the morning and wants him to be ready."

"Ready for what?" I asked with natural curiosity.

"Can't say, ma'am," was the laconic reply. "Thats all Mr. Pettingill said. That he wanted Mr. Harrison to be ready."

Again came the consciousness that I was—in the very nature of things—shut out from most of Jim's business life. It made me realize how little Jim needed me in comparison to my growing need of him.

Useless and Left Out.

"A woman's only in the way half the time," I said to myself sadly. "When it comes to settling things with Pat, Jim can do better without me. Even his homely secretary, Miss Nevins, is in his confidence on a lot of matters he wouldn't dream of talking over with me. And here he's drifting into some sort of intimacy with Uncle Ned in which I can't share."

As I was wondering if in all the world there was another woman who felt as useless and as left out in the cold, Bobby came to announce that Miss Phoebe and Mr. Neal had run in for a minute.

"My blessed Neal!" I said to myself, happy at this interruption of my dull evening. And I hurried out to greet my guests.

Probably there was a shade more warmth in the hug I gave my beloved brother than in the kiss I had for Phoebe. I hadn't forgotten the lunch at Vals from which I was omitted, and I suppose I was just as much miffed at Phoebe for going without me as I was at Val for failing to ask me. Anyway, Neal must have sensed the shades and degrees in my manner, for he promptly flung a protective arm about Phoebe as he cried with boyish pride:

"Doesn't my Phoebekins look great, Anne? We've got a new way of wearing our hair, we have. And it made a large-sized hit at the party today. Take off your hat, honey-girl, and show Anne."

Phoebe giggled and removed her hat, displaying hair drawn back from her forehead and scalloped out over her cheeks in a mode I detest, but which certainly becomes Phoebe and makes her pansy-face look more like a baby's than ever.

"If you aren't cunning!" I exclaimed, forcing myself to add. "I'll bet you were the chief character of the luncheon. Who was there, dear?"

The Twins

"Just Mrs. Cosby and two adorable girls named Willoughby. They are twins, daughters of someone she knew out at home. They've come on to try for a place on the concert stage and Mrs. Pettingill, whom Mrs. Cosby says you know very well, is chaperoning them."

"Wasn't Aunt Molly Pettingill there?" I asked.

"No. Mrs. Cosby said it was a 'kid party,' and that she herself didn't belong," giggled Phoebe.

I felt greatly relieved.

"We came in to see about another party," broke in Neal, "and then we'll have to run along. Get tickets for one of the Summer shows."

"Does Virginia know you're out?" I asked.

"She's almost decent about Neal, replied Phoebe bitterly. "At least she bids him the time of day when she passes him in the apartment. Ever since that dreadful night here she seems aware that Neal's a person—I suppose it was because he made me go home with her and treated her as politely as if she weren't behaving like a fiend."

"A fiend—" I broke in. "Jim calls her that too."

"A fiend," repeated Neal impatiently. "Can't any of you see she's eating her heart out? She looks more like a ghost. But down to business, ladies. Tomorrow night's a very important occasion. Tomorrow belongs—though you pay so little attention to it, Mrs. Harrison—my dear sister Babbsie's birthday. So Miss Phoebe and I here invite you to the swellest dinner the town affords. Evening togs and all—and afterwards a look-in at any show you want to see. Maybe we'd better consult Jim about that. Tastes differ, you know."

He Remembered

"How darling of you," I cried. "I didn't think a soul but Jim would remember my birthday—and he gave me my present weeks ago, but I've not worn it until tonight, the eve of my day—"

I held out the hand on which my pearl ring nestled, and I got enough praise and admiration to suit me. But then Neal insisted on consulting Jim about what show we'd see, and so I had to answer the question I was trying to evade, though I hardly knew why.

"It's out—on business," I said.

Phoebe tossed her head. Almost it seemed that I'd anticipated her doing this and had been trying to save myself from it. And when she spoke, I fancied I'd known all along what one was going to say.

"Out on business! My Neal isn't going to leave me all alone evenings while he transacts horrid old business. For if he has to work I'm going to share, aren't I, Nealie?"

"Street thing you know'" replied Neal—for once unconscious of me and my feelings.

Then they ran along, leaving me feeling more alone than ever. As I sat about trying to read or sew or do something to pass the hours, a thought crept into my mind. It seemed to come from nowhere, but it wouldn't go back there again. What has become of the blue crepe de chine dress Daisy brought back to me when she colored the rag? I was sure she hadn't carried it away with her. But I hadn't seen it since. Where could it be?

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Clark

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

CLARK

VARIATIONS — Clarke, Clarkson, Cleary, O'Clery.

RACIAL ORIGIN—Norman-French, also Gaelic.

SOURCE — An occupation, also a given name.

IN the Norman and the Gaelic divisions of this group of family names we have a vivid example of the romance of tongues. Clarke is an English name, from the Latin through the Norman French. Cleary is an Irish name. Yet both mean the same thing, and indeed there are many Clark and Clarke families whose names are simply the Anglicized versions of the old Celtic name.

Of course, originally, back somewhere in the dim, prehistoric past, there was a mother tongue which gave rise to the entire Indo-European family of languages (which includes the Latin, Greek Teutonic, Celtic, Slavic and certain other ancient tongues of India) as distinguished from the Semitic tongues, for instance, of which examples are the Hebrew and the Arabic. In this prehistoric Indo-European tongue there must have been a word-root from which both the Latin and the Gaelic developed words with the same meaning, "clerk," or "scribe," notwithstanding the fact that the progenitors of the Gaelic and the Latin languages split off from one another long before the dawn of recorded history. The Latin word was "clericus" (of which the final "us" is merely a case ending). The Irish word was "cleireach."

The Latin word coming into English through the Norman-French, developed into a surname through its use as descriptive of an individual's occupation, as "Roger le Clerke," or "Clarke." The Irish word became first a given name "Cleireach," and from this a family or clan name, as "O'Cleirigh" and "MacCleirigh," whence developed the modern forms of O'Clery and Cleary, often changed to Clark and Clarke in the north of Ireland particularly, where the British affiliations were stronger.

Four brothers, Thomas, Dudley, William and George, and their sister, Nancy Clark, are the first ones mentioned in the records of the Clarks in America. They were all born in Amelia County, Virginia, and Thomas, the oldest and the only one of whom there is any record, was born in 1753. He was a farmer and after marrying settled in North Carolina for a while. Then he went to South Carolina and after staying there twenty years moved to Georgia where he died in 1801.

His son, John Clark, was born in North Carolina in 1780 and was a volunteer soldier in the War of 1812. Another distinguished Clark was Dr. Courtney James Clark, who served as a surgeon during the Mexican War. Henry W. Clark was prominent in the Masonic order and was a Master Mason in the Fredonia Lodge in Alabama.

Tomorrow—O'Connor.

Overblouses de Luxe

By Rita Stuyvesant

TO accompany the street suit and separate skirt there are the most fetching little overblouses that are truly distinctive. Severely quiet and simple, yet really quite elaborate, these newest overblouses reflect grace in their lovely lines and becomingness in their soft colorings. When worn with a suit these smart blouses complete an attractive costume, and when allied with a cleverly draped skirt make an engaging afternoon gown will result.

"Brown for Autumn," says Paris, that's why a new georgette blouse chooses coffee for its color and in royal fashion selects gold for its trimming. It cuts its sleeves off above the elbow in the latest approved length and girdles its waist with a slim gold cord. A simple inverted-plait at the back of the arbutus traces its beauty over the front of the georgette.

Brown and gold orange is one of the most popular combinations for the new season, and the slip-on blouse just described is also shown embroidered in orange-colored floss.

Morocco red develops another interpretation of the Autumn overblouse. Cut to fall not quite to the hip line, this dainty blouse is done in twinkling jet beads and finished with a black jet rope girdle quaintly tasseled in red and black.

Expressing naive charm was a clever blouse of almond green chiffon heavily embroidered in citron colored beads of a transparent nature. At the hips the blouse was slashed and sashed with taffeta in the same delightful shade. It was worn over a pale yellow camisole which mingled pleasantly with the almond shade.

Truly Russian in design was a blouse of figured chiffon in dull tones of blue, green and red. Although it was cut several inches below the belt line, it was looped under to puff gracefully over the skirt. A novel feature was the odd sleeves. These were straight and set in at the shoulder, but at the elbow decided fullness in accordion pleated in a smart lantern shape falling to the wrist. Narrow, two-tone ribbon in old red and navy falls side by side through slits at the neck and the ends of the sleeves and tied in fetching little bows with long ends.

The better half of a stunning afternoon gown was composed of a black georgette blouse trimmed with cut-out eyelet which that is enjoying such a vogue among well-dressed women. The tiny sleeves, neck and bottom of the slip-over blouse were finished with the feathery beauty and then as a capricious inspiration, a slim cord of jet was added. To complete this blouse there was a black accordion pleated skirt of soft crepe de chine.

Music and Industry

The village painter was painting the inside walls of the church and was getting on remarkably well with the work, his brush keeping time to a lively tune which he was whistling as he worked. He paused and exclaimed, "John, you should not whistle in church." "I can work better while whistling, sir," said John. "Then whistle a hymn tune," said the Vicar. "Very well, sir," replied John, and commenced whistling "The Old Hundredth," very slowly, his brush keeping time. The Vicar hastily went up to him and said, "Whistle the other tune, John."

WOMAN SUFFERED IN SILENCE

Health Poor, Beauty Fast Fading Away—Made Believe She Was Well

A woman of New Auburn (Me.), writes: "There must be lots of women who feel as I did. I suffered in silence many times on account of my pride, but now I know that a good laxative is essential to good health. I neglected my health trying to keep cheery and resembling I was all right when I wasn't. I had terrible pains, was 'grouchy' and my headaches almost killed me with pain, and worst of all from my viewpoint I had a sallow, unbecoming complexion which was not helped by face powders. Why didn't I try to cure myself rather than pretend? After taking Dr. True's Elixir, I now know that a laxative was what I needed. Dr. True's Elixir is mild and pleasant to take, and works just right for me. My complexion cleared up—bright and rosy—blemishes vanished and every one remarked how much better I looked."—Mrs. E. J. Bell, New Auburn, Me.

The root of many of the evils of life is found in the bowels, a very vital part of the human body.

A cold, a fever, diseases of the liver can be helped at once, providing the operation of the bowels is normal—the first and most important relief can be had by giving a Laxative, be sure it's Dr. True's Elixir.

Most everybody in these days of quick action and strife, forget their health. The laboring people bolt down their meals, often go to bed right after eating, and wake up in the morning restless, force down a breakfast and then are distressed all day.

An Outdoor Worker says: "I couldn't puzzle out what made me feel so bad. My good, home-cooked meals didn't seem taste good, and I had headaches and was grouchy. I never thought it was constipation, but now I know, for I took four doses of your Dr. True's Elixir and feel fine up grand. I will never be without it again in a case of constipation."—F. B. B., Allston, Mass.

The bowels need attention first and always. Rich food, rare, improper cooking, irregular and quick eating, lack of exercise can all be offset providing a mild laxative is taken regularly.

A Business Man Writes: "The continual rush of office details and the short meal hours I get, together with, I think, restaurant foods, has simply knocked my system all to pieces. I felt logy and run down rather than I took Dr. True's Elixir, but now I feel it is a great thing. No one should neglect their bowels."

Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, with an established reputation since 1851 (over 68 years) has accomplished the seemingly impossible. It has relieved thousands of sufferers from constipation, which causes so many terrible disorders.

Dr. True's Elixir will benefit every one: The laborer who eats heartily and quickly; the office boy and girl who eat "fancies" and irregularly; delicate people who can't digest well and children who suffer from intestinal parasites.

Symptoms of worms: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full belly, with occasional pains about the navel, pale face, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose and rectum, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep.

Dr. True's Elixir means a big saving in health and pocketbook. "At all dealers." Three sizes. Buy the large size.

Clogged-Up Liver Causes Headache

The liver is one of the regulators of health. If the liver is active and well, good health and happiness are encouraged, but once you allow your liver to get torpid and sluggish, life becomes a misery. Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Headaches and Melancholy may appear, resulting in lack of energy, loss of memory and ill health, but remember Carter's Little Liver Pills touch the liver and correct all liver ills.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

A few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur bring back its vigor, color, gloss and youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a delightful surprise to your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of W. yeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

THE RAILS UNDER A SQUARE DEAL

The advance in freight and passenger rates which has just gone into effect means not only that the revenue of the Railroads will be materially increased but signifies a distinct change in the attitude of the Government and the General Public towards the vital transportation systems of the country—as a result of which they are henceforth to be not only permitted but assisted to and pay a fair return on invested capital.

We have compiled a booklet showing the indicated comparative receipts, earnings per share, etc., of fifty of the major railroad systems under the new rates. This booklet also gives capitalization, par value, prewar selling prices of shares—territory served and nature of business handled by the different roads—thus becoming a handy reference for vital statistics which you will want to be booked up on if you plan to

RAILROADS ARE THE LEADERS

Oils, Motors and Equipments Rule Lower, While Steels Are Divided

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, but the market bordered on weakness. There was some improvement in the second hour, but toward its close prices had a downward trend. Railroads were leaders in strength and activity, while oils, motors and equipments ruled lower and steels were divided between gains and loss. The price range was narrow.

The market was active, first hour transactions totalling about 150,000 shares. Foreign exchange was steady. Demand sterling opened at $3.56, unchanged; francs at $.0697½, up $.0001½; lire at $.0466, off $.0002; marks at $.0203, off $.0001.

Among issues to sell at 1920 lows were Pierce Arrow, Republic Motor and White Motor. Colorado and Southern sold at a new high for the year.

HIGHER PRICES FOR CARRIERS.

The majority of active stocks sold above Tuesday's closing figures at the opening this morning, and the market began with a strong tone. This was due to carriers. But for the strength of the roads the list would have been irregular. Gains in this group were confined to fractions. Steels, oils and equipments were mixed. Motors were the weakest class. Profit taking came quickly and within fifteen minutes there was a turnabout and the market became weak. Some of the rails showed losses. Others remained up. Both St. Louis & San Francisco and St. Louis & Southwestern sold at new highs for the year. Low-priced rails were more in demand than high-priced ones. Union Pacific sold ex-dividend and soon lost an initial gain. About half of the New York trading yesterday was in railroad stocks. They have not been in such favor for several years.

PUBLIC NOT INVOLVED.

According to statements by brokers here and elsewhere the public is showing very little in the market, and most of the buying from the outside is by small investors of the bargain-hunting specie. They are showing a preference for issues which were standard in the past. The latter have been bought also for some time by important interests. July rail earnings were poor as a whole, but this was due to exceptional circumstances. The new rates will make a great difference in this month's returns. While Western roads are preferred by many persons because it is figured that the harvest will provide them with all the business they can handle for months, as farmers are reported to be inclined to withhold crops, not being satisfied with prices. It is feared on the other hand that traffic on Eastern roads will be reduced by industrial depression. But it may be said in that connection that they seem assured of all the freight they can handle even if mill production is curtailed. As a matter of fact roads east and west lack the equipment to handle all the business that industrial activity would furnish. This condition cannot be remedied for months.

New York, Sept. 1. English labor troubles and weaker Liverpool cables caused active selling at the opening of the cotton market, causing losses of from 10 to 25 points. Opening prices were: October, 27.18; November, 26.40; December, 25.50; January, 24.85; May, 24.05; July, 23.85.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Wheat opened 1c to 3c higher. Corn was ¼c to 1¼c lower and oats started 1¼ lower. Provisions were weaker. Opening prices were: Wheat, December 2.34 to 2.31¼; March 2.31¼. PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON

Trading Dull and Narrow on the Local Exchange; Curb Has Weak Start

Opening weak, the Boston market became irregular soon and prices remained mixed to the end of the first hour. Trading was narrow and fluctuations averaged small. Nearly half of the stocks dealt in up to midmorning showed no price variation. The market was featureless. New England rails were in light demand, although carriers were leaders in New York. Among the most active issues here during the morning were Waldorf, Orpheum and American Telephone. Issues to advance a point or more were Boston & Maine, Elder & Shawmut Steamship, while Waltham sagged 1½ on a solitary sale.

Stocks to advance fractionally included Boston Elevated, United Shoe, National Leather, Orpheum, Connor Co., International Products and Waldorf.

Among those to recede a little were American Telephone, Simms Magneto, Swift & Co., Bigheart, Seneca and East Butte.

The Curb market had a weak opening and trading on this exchange was torpid all the forenoon. Active issues were Arizona Tip Top, Boston & Montana and Eureka. At the start Arizona Extension and Boston & Montana advanced, while Bagdad, Tip Top, Chief, Denbigh, Ruby, Mutual and Porcupine Premier were off.

At the end of an hour Tip Top was off 1 cent at 16 cents, Eureka 2 cents at 28 cents and Mutual 6 cents at 87 cents. Boston & Montana was up 2 cents at 89 cents. Bagdad had recovered a cent loss.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Co. has declared the regular quarterly dividend of $3 on common stock, payable Sept. 15 to stock of record Sept. 1.

Lansing Wilcox, vice-president of the Metropolitan Trust Co. has tendered his resignation to go to South America, where he will become associated with the South American branch of the First National Bank of Boston.

Long Telephone Conversations

Many telephone users hold the lines for an unnecessarily long period of time.

Long telephone conversations result in the delay and annoyance of repeated busy line reports, particularly in connection with party lines.

Limiting conversations to as short a time as possible, and giving up a party-line when requested to do so, will assist in maintaining good telephone service.

NO RENT BOOST HERE LANDLORD PUTTING YOU OUT

Every Man His Own Boss

I have helped over 200 families from the City Tenement to Independence. Many started with only a $10 bill and monthly payments of $5 to $10, making a modest start according to their means, and by the help of my 20 years' specializing in this line of business are now the owners of respectable homes and happy, healthy families. No more "Rent Bills," no more "Put Him Out." Their bank accounts are now growing. Vegetables, flower gardens, hens, lawns and shade trees now replace the hot sidewalk and street. I own a large number of very attractive garden lots I will sell you at your own terms, and extend you the same help, courteous and lenient treatment, and offer you my 20 years of expensive, hard-earned experience to give you the same independence and comfort as my other customers. All I want is the help of honest, hard-working, progressive people, like myself, who are ambitious to become self supporting. I want you to bring your family out to see me so I can show you the 200 actual proofs of my efforts for others. On receipt of your request today for circular telling "How to do it," I will send it by return mail. No one is too poor to make the right start by my method. Write today to Manager, P. O. box 2889, Boston.

Public Owned Coal Mines and Railroads Would Mean Electrified Roads

In Belgium and Italy the government is electrifying their railroads.

If our coal mines were owned and operated by the government for the greatest good of the greatest number of the American people and our railroads were owned and operated by the government with the same object in view, we should soon be enjoying travel on electrified railroads and those railroads would be operated for less cost.

Thus we should soon have the supreme pleasure of travelling in open cars without dust and discomfiture on trains propelled by electricity for less cost than we are now obliged to pay for the privilege of being befouled with soot and poisoned with gas.

An immense waste of wealth occurs every hour of the day at our coal mines. An immense loss of money and general wastage is involved every hour on our railroads by the necessity of devoting cars and engines and track space and the wear and tear of rails and the employment of an army of men to move coal which is used by the railroads themselves for motive power. If the government owned our coal mines and controlled our water power, as it ought to do and as it will some day, following the example of more progressive peoples of the world, we would be able to combine the production of power from our descending water and the power from the coal at our mines so that we could give the railroads substantially all the electric power they need to do the nation's transportation business.

But what brains are found in the private management of our railroads has to be devoted to corrupt attempts to control our government in order that the inefficiency, waste and extortion of private mismanagement of the roads may not be subject to public inquiry and correction by our government officials, and in order that the results of this everlasting, never-ending, inevitable mismanagement may by legislation be transferred from the shoulders of those who are responsible for it upon the public shoulders through increase of passenger fares and freight rates. What brains are left after conducting a huge political machine to control this country are devoted to stock manipulations and watering down the securities of the railroads in Wall Street. There is nothing left in private management either in time or brains or energy to improve our railroads either by developing economies or advancing the art.

Mr. Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court said not long ago that the railroads wasted more than a million dollars a day by inefficient private management. The inefficient private managers tried to laugh him out of court, but now everybody knows that the only fault with Judge Brandeis' statement was that he made the amount of wastage much too low.

Europe Could Produce Food If It Would Stop Fighting

A Universal Service dispatch from Paris, under date of August 2, says that the French crop statistics published on that date reveal a shortage in the French grain crop of more than 50,000,000 bushels.

The dispatch continues as follows:

The United States is now the sole hope, as Argentina has banned exportation. Great Britain monopolizes the Canadian supply, and Russia, as a grain source, is hopeless. Italy must import 65,000,000 bushels, and it is revealed that similar needs exist throughout Europe.

So the story goes. Always it is being proposed in Europe that the United States should bear the white man's burden, or, rather, the burden of the white man's folly.

It is considered quite natural that the Argentine Republic should place an embargo on the exportation of its grain so that its people may not be obliged to bear an increase in the cost of living by reason of sending its grain abroad.

It is considered reasonable that Great Britain should monopolize the enormous grain fields of her colonies—Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Could there be a more complete exposure of the League of Nations as a cloak for the aggressions and greed for the half-dozen unregenerate nations which were made victors in the late war by the self-sacrifice of Americans who believed that they were fighting the war to make the world safe for democracy?

What these nations were really fighting for was to impose upon the world their brand of imperialism instead of Germany's brand, and the so-called League of Nations, which the White House and the Democratic nominee for the Presidency are trying to impose upon the already over-burdened backs of the American people, is a militaristic league of oppression and suppression for which our liberty-loving nation should have no support and no sympathy.

If the Democratic party is to be merely the party of European militarism and the Republican party the party of American independence, there is no doubt how every true American should vote.

Let Us All Have Some Fun

Mr. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, is greatly exercised over the Republican party's campaign fund.

"Laugh, and the world laughs with you," sang the poet. Mr. Ex-Secretary McAdoo really ought to let the world in on his laugh.

When Mr. McAdoo and his father-in-law were in the running, did they have a campaign fund? Did Mr. ex-Ambassador Gerard contribute five or ten or twenty thousand dollars? Did Mr. B. M. Baruch contribute twenty or thirty or forty or fifty thousand dollars? Did ex-Ambassador Penfield contribute a dollar and a half or ten thousand dollars or twenty thousand dollars? Ex-Mr. McAdoo knows. Only Mr. ex-McAdoo is not talking about it. All he is talking about is the present Republican fund.

A big campaign fund is an evil which, we all hope, will soon be eradicated. To this end it behooves all men to raise their voices and protest against big contributions which, sooner or later, must be repaid. When, however, any one prominently connected with the present administration raises his voice in protest, it is difficult to refrain from laughing.

Mr. McAdoo-ex had a splendid chance to protest against excessive campaign funds when B. Baruch, J. Gerard and F. Penfield shipped in.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Silk Shirt

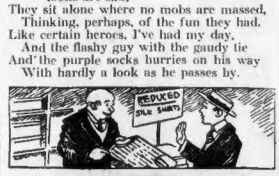
By S. E. KISER

HOW soon the days of our glory pass—
Favor's a thing that is quick to change;
The public is always eager, alas,
To be turning to things that are new and strange.
Men who were leaders a year ago,
And applauded loudly and filled with pride,
Sit in their corners, their heads bowed low,
Wondering why they were thrust aside.

SO it is with the lesser things.
The books men read and the clothes they wear,
Every season its changes brings;
Men care, but are quick to forget to care!
I am the voice of the striped silk shirt;
Linger a little and hear my wail:
They have marked me down, I am sorely hurt;
Mine, too, has become but a common tale.

I REMEMBER well how the handsome clerk
Once paused to look with appraising eyes,
And then passed on to his daily work,
Heaving a couple of heartfelt sighs.
And the colored gent, with his cash unspent,
And his golden teeth, would remain to gaze;
But that was before they had raised his rent—
Ah, those, indeed, were halcyon days!

MY glory's past as their glory passed
Who are cheered no more and whose looks are sad;
They sit alone where no mobs are massed,
Thinking, perhaps, of the fun they had.
Like certain heroes, I've had my day,
And the flashy guy with the gaudy tie
And the purple socks hurries on his way
With hardly a look as he passes by.



THE SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

"I suppose Adam would be surprised if he could come back to the world now."

"Why?"

"Everybody's being turned out of house and home, just as in his day."

Letters to the Editor

Against Cox and League

Editor Boston American:

Being a member of a local union, I protest against the way President Gompers and some more of the officers of the American Federation of Labor express themselves to reporters of the press. I say as an American citizen that I will not vote for Cox or any one who is in favor of the League of Nations, and I am not afraid to say openly that this is sound union principles. To make a test, I would like to see a straw vote taken by your paper in the union to which I belong, which has over 6,000 members. I can safely say that the result would be 10 to 1 against Cox. Coal Shortage

Editor Boston American:

An old man said, "we are living in an age of robbery." His memory went back to days when a dollar would buy far more than it does now. But this condition has come about gradually, through control of markets by trusts and combinations.

About twenty years ago a "scarcity" of coal sent the price of a ton from six to twenty dollars. How much of that increase was legitimate and how much pickpocketing is a question. We are confronted with another artificial shortage. Many people have not been able to lay in a store for the coming cold season. The railroad-controlled mines, no doubt, are planning to fleece the public, while our administration seeks to mix itself up in European politics, neglecting home affairs.

"Bombard your representatives in Congress!" was the cry when some propaganda scheme was sought to be pushed through in the late war. Now, if the American will print a petition, in each issue, to be signed and forwarded by its many readers, to their representatives at Washington, it may arouse public sentimen, cause the coal combine to distribute a supply at a just figure, and avoid much unnecessary privation and suffering this Winter.

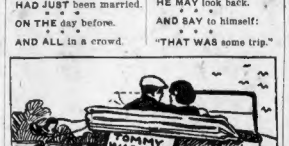
OVER AT the garage.
WHERE I keep my car.
THERE ARE other cars.
OF LUCKY folk.
WHO HAVE money.
enough.
TO KEEP chauffeurs.
AND THERE'S eight of them.
OR MAYBE ten.
AND I will say.
THEY'RE A kindly lot.
FOR MANY a time.
THEY HAVE rescued me.
WHEN I'VE been lost.
IN THE maze of things.
BENEATH THE hood.
OF MY Willys Six.
AND I like them all.
AND WE are friends.
AND IN the months.
THAT I'VE been there.
THEY'VE ASKED no thing.
THAT I do for them.
UNTIL YESTERDAY.
WHEN THEY came to me.
TO LET me know.
THAT ONE of them.
WHO IS Tommy by name.
HAD JUST been married.
ON THE day before.
AND ALL in a crowd.
THEY ASKED of me.
IF I wouldn't write.
AND PUT it here.
THAT TOMMY was wed.
AND WHAT could I do?
AND I said I would.
AND HARRY suggested.
I MAKE it read.
AS THOUGH Tommy had died.
AND ASHLEY suggested.
I KID him a bit.
BUT I haven't the heart.
TO DO these things.
SO I'LL put it down.
THAT WE all are glad.
MY CHAUFFEUR friends.
AND MY humble self.
THAT TOMMY has wed.
AND WE all of us hope.
THAT THE road he's on.
WILL BE always good.
WITH NO detours.
AND WHATEVER the hills.
HE'LL TAKE them on high.
AND WHEN he's through.
AND HIS tour is done.
HE MAY look back.
AND SAY to himself:
"THAT WAS some trip."



I THANK you.

HUMAN SOUL LIKE THE HERMIT CRAB

By The Spectator

THE human spirit is a hermit crab. This poor beastie, having no natural protection for a part of his body, thrusts it into the shell of a whelk or other univalve mollusk. From the first the human young begin searching for some friendly whelk shelter.

Children love to play at being somebody else. They are happiest when they are playing king or mother or circus man—anybody but themselves. Brought back to himself, the child weeps. The personality shivers with cold and desolation when it can crawl into no other personality.

Trait Persists

And the trait persists. The grown-up child never expands and rejoices so much as when he wears a military uniform. Every brass button and gold epaulette and white baldric cries out for joy; the little soul has found such a gorgeous whelk. Men go to lodges and don high peaked hats and royal robes and revel in high sounding ritual.

We constantly seek refuge from our own terrifying selves. We cannot even talk naturally because our voice shames us. If a newsboy would advocate his papers in a conversational tone, all the passersby would stop and wonder and probably think he was crazy. We do not care for the parson unless he puts on the conventional parsonaceous tone; he had as well come into the pulpit with a striped sackcoat as to speak to us in an easy-going street voice.

Strange to Him

The reason why the orator on class day strikes a strange and foreign tone is because he is giving out ideas strange and foreign to him. If he became conscious for one moment of his real self and thoughts he would be swamped in embarrassement.

The mind is wrapped in words, soaked in words, is words. The hermit crab has become absorbed by his whelk.

Having finished with the whelk shells of this life, we seek housing in the next. "For," says the apostle, "this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality."

FEAR NOTHING

Are you not allowing your periods of dejection to come too often and to last too long?

As your dejection gets stronger, do you not have greater misgivings?

Each year your spirits settle lower, each year you are less sure of yourself, apparently, and you seem to get less out of life.

Is it so much easier for you to think of failure than of success?

Is there real occasion for you to feel gloomy?

To be sure, men are being laid off and the gay old bird H. C. L. is still rampant, but you have no reason to think that you may be called upon to suffer any more than any of the rest of your friends and associates in life, eh?

Then quit thinking yourself into physical and mental decay.

You are doing every possible thing to put yourself out of the race of the young and vigorous by harboring such dark forebodings.

You still possess a good mind and a body which responds to reasonable demands—why not support rather than weaken your position?

Smile, throw back your shoulders, raise your chest and get some spirit into your walk, your conversation, your work and your play.

The Telescope's Eye

The biggest telescope ever constructed is the one-hundred-inch reflector at Mt. Wilson, California. . . .

The mirror that makes up the gigantic reflector is a disc of glass more than eight and a half feet in diameter, weighing four tons.

The casting of this gigantic block of glass was a feat that taxed the skill of the glassmakers in France.—September Hearst's.

WHY POTS DO NOT MELT AS WATER BOILS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Why does not a vessel (particularly of copper) melt when subjected to fire; for example, a copper teakettle or copper pipes in the firebox of a range, heating water for the boiler?—W. E. E., Philadelphia."

BECAUSE of one of nature's most beautiful applications of one of her greatest laws, a law that stands in her statute book alongside with that which Franklin discovered when he experimented with lightning and found that he could make it follow an iron rod and spare a house.

It is also akin to the law that causes water to run down hill, and to that which makes an electric current flow in a particular direction. The principle underlying all of these laws is that the effect of a force follows the line of least resistance.

If Empty

Now, take your copper teakettle just filled with water and set on the fire. If it were empty and if the heat of the fire raised its temperature to about 1,982 degrees Fahrenheit the bottom would be melted out of it. But the water saves it from this fate and keeps its temperature far below the melting point of copper by absorbing the heat.

The copper, however, is an active agent in procuring its own safety by virtue of its property of rapidly conducting heat. It permits the heat to pass readily through its molecules, or, more correctly stated, the molecules quickly distribute it by their vibrations, so that it is almost instantly conducted through the substance of the copper, from the outside of the kettle, where it is in contact with the fire, to the inside, where it is in contact with the water.

Heat Cannot Accumulate

The water seizes upon the heat and carries it away from the metal, diffusing it by means of convection (conveying) currents which the difference of temperature immediately sets flowing between the lower and upper parts of the liquid.

Thus the heat is prevented from accumulating in the copper. Water is a poor conductor of heat, but, on the contrary, a great consumer of it, since it requires a greater quantity of heat to raise its temperature by a given amount than is required by any other substance that we know. This quantity is called "specific heat," and the specific heat of water is more than ten times that of copper.

Stars and Stripes

Egypt is to get "independence," with a lot of British strings to it. Not such was the independence our forefathers wrought.

"Today, more than ever before, voters," says Candidate Roosevelt, "are using their heads." It is all right to be complimentary, Franklin, but don't get romantic.

A new creed promises to abolish wars, vice, poverty and work. It won't succeed. Man demands variety.

That loud hissing you don't hear is any campaign manager scorning tainted money or objecting to too much of it.

The judge who says "Don't give your money to your wife" assumes it is the man's money. How about marriage as a partnership?

If a movie star may earn a million a minute, surely that great author, William Barnes, may reasonably get $200,000 for a campaign book. Authors must live, you know.

Evil associations encourage the knockers to get after you.

It is often difficult to draw the line between the courage of one's convictions and stubborn foolishness.

The old saying, "Don't put all of your eggs in one basket," has been changed to "Don't put all of your egg in one thimble."

The fellow who is always growling about women talking so much will stand around on a street corner and argue for three hours that the umpire was wrong about that play at third base.
